Revolutionary as they were, the Founding Fathers would have been amazed, maybe even shocked, by some of the activities that marked Lincoln's celebration of the nation's 199th birthday.

The fireworks which plastered the sky over Holmes Lake with rainbows of sparkling, sizzling color were nothing new. Americans have been watching their money go up in smoke every Fourth of July for years. In fact, the stale smell of smoke drifting over a crowd amid ear-splitting explosions has become as much a part of the celebration as picnics in a park and homemade ice cream.

But if George Washington had buckled his shoes, hitched up his knickerbockers and set out on a walk across Holmes Park Friday afternoon, he would have seen other sights that might have made him flip his powdered wig.

Members of the Lincoln Sport Parachute Club came sailing out of a hazy blue sky, suspended only by flimsy parasols of red and white cloth. A few missed the target area and landed in the lake, where they floated until boaters came to help.

Contestants in the Vern Mares Panorama Canoe Portage actually looked like they enjoyed racing across Oak Lake, walking with their canoes across town and finishing the race in Holmes Lake. In George's day, you got out and walked only if you had to.

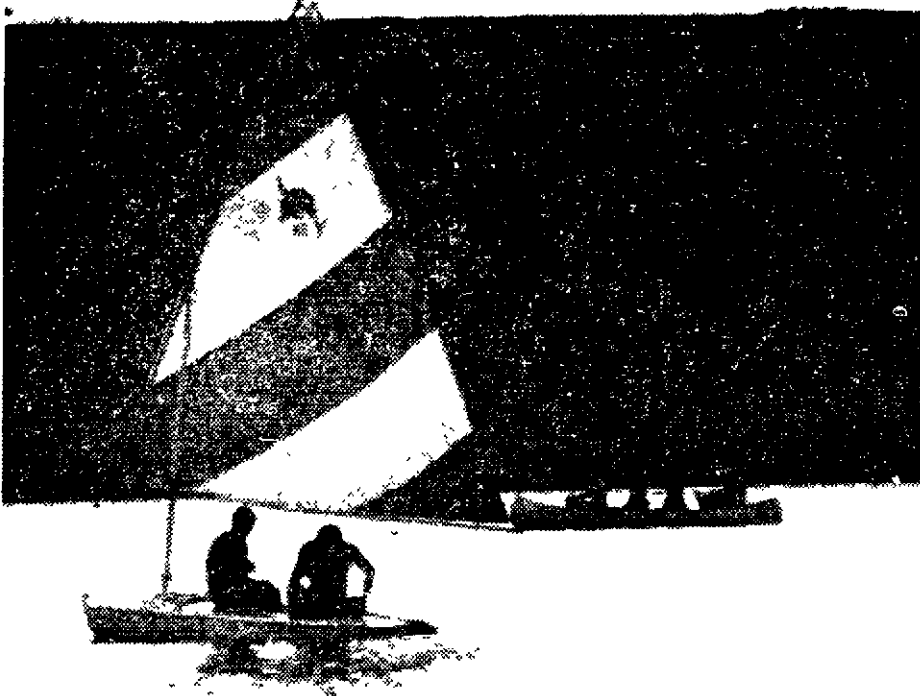

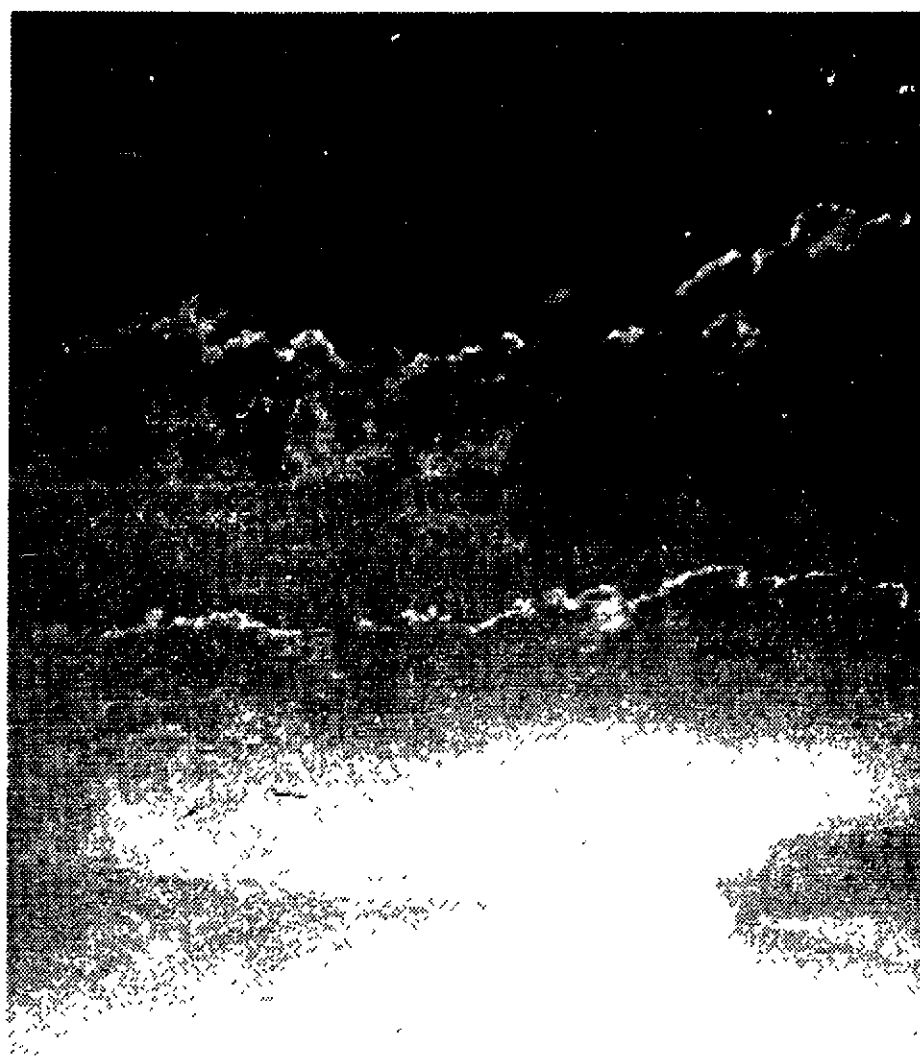

And those girls in bikinis and halter tops might have had even the most liberal of Founding Fathers wondering if this business of freedom should be allowed to go so far.

It was a day for hording ice chests, dodging frisbees and eying suspiciously little boys with matches in their hands and bulges in their back pockets.

More than one family started their day near the trunk of a tree only to find themselves moving every few minutes as the sun sank and the cool balls of shadow deserted them.

And, as expected, the day ended with the 20th Century's contribution to Fourth of July celebrations, the once-the-show-is-over-let's-get-out-of-here - as - quick-as-we-can traffic jam.

Now there's something old George would have smiled at.

FBI Not Called In '64 Because Of Technicality

©The New York Times

New Orleans, La. — Persuasive evidence of widespread thefts of grain of the kind that has led to a major break in the current investigation of alleged corruption in the grain export trade was presented to Federal officers as early as 1964 but never followed up by U.S. investigators.

The office of the then-U.S. attorney declined to call in the FBI because of a technicality, according to a variety of sources including grain industry officials whose companies had financed a private investigation.

Their inquiry began after harbor police here turned up what were described as strong clues.

Some local grain elevator officials were suspected of involvement in theft rings under investigation in 1964. They included a present official of a large grain company who is described also as a suspect in the current investigation of alleged corruption in the handling, grading and weighing of grain for export.

Illegal Profits High

The discovery of theft rings operating with the cooperation of elevator aides, allegedly including management personnel of at least three large grain corporations, has led to chains of testimony allegedly implicating higher officials during the current investigation, which reportedly has found evidence of millions of dollars in illegal profits.

The reports presented to the then U.S. attorney included photographic evidence, reports resulting from spotter airplanes, identification of trucks involved, personal observations by night and confidential acknowledgements from some officials involved.

A follow-up on the case was rejected by the office of the then U.S. Attorney and the FBI according to sources in the grain companies that financed the original investigation, because the barges from which the grain was apparently stolen, although carrying grain from inland points for export, were "at rest" when the acts allegedly occurred.

Thus it was ruled, according to the sources, the grain was neither in interstate nor foreign commerce, and no federal offenses were involved. The New Orleans harbor police and other local agencies had jurisdiction too limited for effective investigation of the widespread thefts, they said.

Outlines Confirmed

The general outlines of the early investigation have been confirmed both by Edwin Pritchard, superintendent of the harbor police, which conducted the preliminary investigation, and William Gurvich, executive director of the Gurvich Detective Agency, which conducted the investigation for the grain companies.

Gurvich is now director of the fraud and economic crime unit of the District Attorney's office.

U.S. Atty. Gerald J. Gallinghouse, who is coordinating the current multi-agency investigation, in office since 1970, said he had no records on the 1964 case nor any indication why a follow-up was ruled out by his predecessor, now deceased.

Identification Problem

But other sources close to the current investigation said there were problems involved that had long been regarded as substantial. A major one is that bulk grain is virtually impossible to identify as to origin and impossible to identify as stolen when discovered.

It was futile to attempt to follow up the investigation privately, according to sources close to the grain industry effort, because word of the investigation leaked out in late 1964 or early 1965 and theft operations suddenly halted.

But the widespread thefts were common knowledge among local elevator employees, inspectors who grade the grain and men who operated the barges, according to witnesses aiding in the current investigation.

But at the time "nobody talked around grain elevators," Gurvich said.

Forays Early In 1963

One witness in the current investigation told a reporter he had been invited by two friends to join in forays on the grain barges as early as 1963 but had rejected the proposals because of heavy demands of overtime work and because he considered it too dangerous to operate on the Mississippi River at night without running lights in the small boats operated by his friends.

"C'mon, why not, the big boys are getting theirs," he said his friends had told him.

He said his fears were confirmed when their boat was nearly run down by a large freighter and, when they ran for shore with their boat heavily loaded, they capsized on the river bank. Although their grain was wet, they recovered it and sold it to a local grain outlet, he said.

But such operations were reportedly minuscule beside the theft operations then found to be under way.

According to Gurvich, there were several points along the river where heavy equipment was used to scoop grain from barges.

At one point, he said, a burlap bag thrown over a "no vehicles allowed" sign on the river bank was a signal that it was safe to come in and pick up stolen grain.

Today's Tories Honored By People's Bicentennial

Washington (UPI) — The People's Bicentennial Commission was out early on the Fourth — presenting "awards" Friday morning to its choices for five biggest Tories of the anniversary year, and predicting a new political movement based on a return to the principles of the American Revolution.

In a ceremony at the Jefferson Memorial, the PBC presented three-by-five-foot "one-way tickets to Nova Scotia" to five companies it said are commercializing the 200th anniversary of the nation.

The "awards" went to Mobil Oil, the Freedom Train, Disney World, the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration, and Time magazine.

During the original Revolution, tens of thousands of British sympathizers "were hooted out of America by the patriots for their aristocratic ways," according to the PBC.

PBC's spokesman Jeremy Rifkin said Friday marked two bicentennial celebrations — one sponsored by the government, and the other representing the stirrings of a new political movement.

"There is the beginning — only the stirrings — of a new radical, patriotic movement," Rifkin said.

He said the celebration sponsored "by the government, by state commissions, by local Daughters of the American Revolution and other groups, has nothing to do with what happened 200 years ago."

Rifkin, whose People's Bicentennial Commission is not part of the official, federally sponsored birthday party, said in an interview the new political movement is "made up of people who find themselves facing the same issues as 200 years ago."

The PBC has been working on bicentennial events since 1971. In recent years — in Boston, marking the Boston Tea Party and most recently in Concord, Mass., when it staged a counter-rally, to the official one attended by President Ford — it proved that it can rally tens of thousands of demonstrators.

It has also put out educational material on the Revolution that has been used by some 5,000 school boards, civic groups and church organizations.

Rifkin said, "A new monarchy has grown up in America," and added: "Today's royalists — America's giant corporations — make King George look like a petty tyrant. Their massive power pervades every aspect of American life — from the aisles of the supermarket to the halls of Congress."

The situation, he said, "is like the summer of 1775: The economy then was in a shambles and the country was in a tremendous crisis."

"Out of that crisis," he said, "came a whole new breed of apostles."

She Doesn't Mind Heat

Olga Rostrikova wants to be like her brothers. Not because they are male, but because they are sportsmen.

The 16-year-old Russian sprinter was inspired by her two older brothers, who hold between them three master degrees in handball, jumping and the 100-meter race. The master degree is the top of four categories which measure athletic achievement in the Soviet Union regardless of age level.

A native of Kochobka in the Ukrainian Republic, Olga is not bothered by Lincoln's steamy weather. She's used to summertime temperatures that hover in the low 90's at home.

Bread Disappointing

What she and her teammates — about half of whom are from the Ukraine — are not so used to is American bread. There is a saying, she said, that the best bread in the world is produced in the Ukraine. Our sliced, processed loaves pale by comparison.

This 100-meter runner has competed in events at home and in the German Democratic Republic, but this is her first trip to the U.S.

She records "beautiful buildings" and "different" food among her first impressions of Lincoln, but has not yet had a chance to get out and see the city or go into stores.

Rest and training are on the program first, Olga stressed. But she hopes to get in some sightseeing and shopping after the competition.

Meet Seen As 'School'

Although she's been running for seven years, Olga's time of 11.6 seconds in the 100-meter dash is not a top speed in the event. Instead of being discouraged, Olga sees the Lincoln meet as a "great school" for learning and improving.

Her coach, Galina Bucharina, says Olga needs to work on raising her hips a bit more when running. Open to criticism, the young athlete had nothing but smiles and praise for her trainer, a championship competitor in her own right.

This young athlete, who stands 5 feet, 7 inches and weighs 132 pounds, says she really gets geared up for competition.

And that's as it should be, interjected Peter Stepanenko, director of the team. "If she isn't excited about sports," he jests, "she should stay home and knit hats."

Collects, Trades Pins

When she's not in training or working out two hours daily, Olga collects and trades athletic insignia — brightly colored pins that are worn and exchanged liberally among Russians. She's also got a soft spot for growing roses and her face lights up at the mention of this interest.

Like young people everywhere, Olga wears jeans, likes rock and roll, especially the Beatles and the Rolling Stones, and goes to dances.

You can't get much information from the "city directory" sign in the east lobby of the County-City Building.

The "county directory" sign isn't much better.

The reason is that Building Superintendent Henry Lorenz had three of his men tape out most of the names in the sign.

The city sign is less informative than the county side because names don't change as fast on the county side.

The hasty taping came hard on the heels of a reporter's questions on why the signs were obsolete.

The signs bore names like Charles Noren, formerly a municipal judge, Jack Lindner, a former city prosecutor, Donald Cullen, a former municipal court clerk, and James Ager, a former director of parks and recreation.

Other names have been more recently in the news. County Atty. Paul Douglas moved on to become state attorney general.

Police Chief Joe Carroll retired. The reason the signs didn't change with the times, Lorenz said, is that it cost "hundreds" to update them.

The letters in the signs are a clear gold in a sheet of black glass, behind a sheet of protective clear glass.

Each time a single name had to be changed, a large sheet of glass bearing many names had to be created, Lorenz said. The sheet, he said, had to be ordered from an out-of-state firm.

Because of the expense, Lorenz said he is going to recommend to the County-City Building Commission that the directories be turned into bulletin boards.

Apartment May Pave Way To More Suburban Integration

By PAUL DELANEY

Chicago — The names include Versailles on the Lake near Chicago, Erin Acres and Thurber Club near Columbus, Ohio, Mystic Garden near Boston, Unicorn Club near Kansas City, Independence Green near Detroit and Maison Deauville near Cincinnati.

They are modestly described by their managers as "the ultimate in luxury living" or "the 'in' place for sophisticated young adults." They offer an appealing array of attractions, from seclusion, trees, streams and ravines to tennis, squash and handball courts, saunas, party and game rooms, and planned social activities.

They are the sparkling new apartment complexes, usually for young singles and married couples that have sprung up in the nation's suburbs. But unlike the suburbs that bred them these centers of socially active youthful adults do not share the same history of segregation, and most of them have a policy of integration.

Blacks Join Swinging Set

Thus, blacks and other minorities are joining the swinging set in increasing numbers. And some observers believe the new apartment complexes are paving the way to more integration of the suburbs.

Two reasons for the increased lowering of racial barriers in suburban areas appear to be the poor state of the economy and a growing awareness of the myriad laws and court rulings against housing discrimination.

"You got the bucks, we love you," remarked Michael Davis, manager of Oakwood Apartments in the San Fernando Valley.

Paul Epstein, executive director of the Fair Housing Center of Chicago, said the impact of fair housing laws and court rulings was just beginning to be felt, "in addition to many people of goodwill who always wanted to do what was right." He said that blacks move for the same reason as whites, and predicted a new era in integrated housing as more blacks and other minorities begin taking advantage of access to the suburbs.

Income Parity Achieved

The easier access is also attributable to the improved economic status of a small minority of young blacks. Recent reports by the Bureau of the Census show that, while the income gap between black families and white families is getting wider, young black college graduates have achieved income parity with their white counterparts.

While it appears that the overwhelming majority of young blacks would prefer to live in the city, a spot check of several cities found black residents in each complex except for one in Kansas City. Other cities included were Boston, Cleveland, Detroit, Miami, Los Angeles and Atlanta.

For the most part, black residents of suburban apartment complexes say they find no real problems. However, several said they had experienced at least one incident, and some said they felt unwelcome in suburban shopping centers.

B. Vivian Aplin, a reporter with the Cleveland Plain Dealer who lives in suburban Euclid, recalled that a "white derelict walked up to me on the street and stared, and then launched into a string of expletives."

Sharon Williams, an operational research analyst with the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston, said a group of white children once yelled at her, "Aunt Jemima forgot her syrup." Miss Williams lives in the Mystic Garden apartments in Arlington, Mass.

Shopkeepers' Attitudes Objectionable
Jacquelyn Lonian, a high school guidance counselor who lives in Windsor Village Apartments in Waltham, Mass., said she objects to the attitude of some shopkeepers in the area.

"Things like going into a store and being watched," she complained. "I think, sometimes, because I'm black I'm being watched extra carefully."

"Or walking into the bank and having the guard appear, as though I'm going to rob the bank. Also I found a different reaction when I wear my hair straight and when I wear an Afro. They are really on guard when I wear an Afro."

Some blacks said it is much easier to rent suburban apartments now than it was five years ago. Gladys Gunn, a Dayton, Ohio, educator, said she resorted to subterfuge to get an apartment in Salem Woods Apartments. She said she had a white friend go to the office and pay the first month rent when she became the first black to move in. Others followed fairly easily, she said.

Crow, Pop & Land, developer of some of the most popular singles complexes in Atlanta, was accused of discrimination last October by the Justice Department. As a result, the company now has to make quarterly reports for a year on the racial makeup of its apartments. It was also ordered to advertise in all news media, including the black news media, using ads that showed integrated settings.

Despite the order, one of the company's complexes, Riverbend Apartments, which has 1,500 residents, is only 1% black.

Uneasiness Said Justified
The uneasiness of blacks might be justified in some cases. For example, a black man inquired about an apartment at the Unicorn Club Apartments in Kansas City and was given a quick tour of a model apartment, the bar and restaurant.

A young white woman who inquired about an apartment shortly after him was shown the workings of the security system, including computerized keys that cannot be duplicated. She was also shown the swimming pool with its waterfall and the party room with its bandstand, and was told of a calendar of activities for every night. She was also told that a party was being held the same night.

Also in Kansas City, the manager of Malibu Royale Apartments confided to a reporter that the place was all-white. Asked how it was kept that way, the manager, Marci Hammons, said she evicted a black family three years ago for non-payment of rent.

"I've had blacks look at the place, but they didn't take it," Mrs. Hammons remarked. "I guess they don't want to live where there aren't any other blacks."

Jobs Concern NAACP

Washington — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, concluding its 66th annual convention here, called Friday on civil rights enforcement agencies, the courts and Congress to protect the job rights of minorities and women during the recession.

Portuguese Chided

Lisbon, Portugal — Culminating hours of conflict that was said to have reached the highest circles of the ruling armed forces, thousands of extreme leftists marched through Lisbon protesting what they charged were fascist and capitalist maneuvers against the revolution. This made President Francisco da Costa Gomes urgently appeal over the radio for calm and discipline.

Two-Tier Fare Urged

Washington — Transportation secretary William T. Coleman believes that hard-pressed urban transit systems should examine the possibility of installing a two-tier fare system, charging higher fares to all but low-income passengers. "Relief recipients, job-seekers and others perhaps should be treated like senior citizens," Coleman said.

Lansdale Denies Story

Washington (Washington Star) — Retired Maj. Gen. Edward G. Lansdale says he was not ordered by Robert F. Kennedy to plan the assassination of Fidel Castro or to take "direct action of any sort" against the Cuban premier.

Draft Agreement OK'd

Explosion Kills 13 In Jerusalem

... Palestinians: We Did It

JERUSALEM (AP) — A refrigerator packed with explosives blew up in front of a toy store on Jerusalem's busiest street Friday, killing 13 persons and wounding 72 in the worst terrorist strike in the Holy City in recent memory, police said.

A Palestinian guerrilla unit in Lebanon claimed responsibility for the blast that struck as crowds shopped for the Jewish Sabbath.

The state radio said two children were among the dead. One report said Deborah Levine, a teen-ager from Richmond, Va., was slightly injured by flying glass.

The worst previous terrorist incident in Jerusalem occurred in July 1946 when guerrillas fighting for Israeli independence bombed the King David Hotel, killing 95 persons.

Shattered glass cut dozens of passers-by in the Friday's blast and dazed scores more.

David Goldsmith, 31, a freelance British film maker who was wounded in the explosion, said he saw two halves of a body fly over the hood of his car, and that scores of bodies were strewn all over the pavement, which was totally black from the explosion, "as if someone had poured tar over it."

The bomb, believed to be made of explosives wrapped around two mortar shells, exploded on Jerusalem's main commercial street, Jaffa Road opposite Zion Square, at about 10 a.m. Israeli time.

What A Fourth!

It happened to Jackie and Ned Bush Jr. Thursday night, but what a Fourth of July present anyhow! The happy couple won $300,000 in the Illinois bonanza lottery drawing in Chicago. With that prize, the Terre Haute, Ind., couple can declare their independence.

Hog Cholera Outbreak In Texas Is Confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first outbreak of hog cholera in more than a year has been confirmed in the Texas Panhandle, the Agriculture Department announced Friday.

Animal health officials warned hog farmers in the Southwest and throughout the country to be alert for signs of disease. It is often fatal for pigs but does not affect other animals or humans. The current outbreak was found near Hereford, Tex., in a herd of about 170 hogs owned by Louis Woodford, the department said. The diagnosis was confirmed early Friday at a government laboratory in Ames, Iowa, Friday, from tests on specimens from the hogs.

Apartments May Pave Way To More Suburban Integration

By PAUL DELANEY

Chicago — The names include Versailles on the Lake near Chicago, Erin Acres and Thuber Club near Columbus, Ohio, Mystic Garden near Boston, Unicorn Club near Kansas City, Independence Green near Detroit and Maison Deauville near Cincinnati.

They are immodestly described by their managers as "the ultimate in luxury living" or "the 'in' place for sophisticated young adults." They offer an appealing array of attractions, from seclusion, trees, streams and ravines to tennis, squash and handball courts, saunas, party and game rooms, and planned social activities.

They are the sparkling new apartment complexes, usually for young singles and married couples that have sprung up in the nation's suburbs. But unlike the suburbs that bred them these centers of socially active youthful adults do not share the same history of segregation, and most of them have a policy of integration.

Blacks Join Swinging Set

Thus, blacks and other minorities are joining the swinging set in increasing numbers. And some observers believe the new apartment complexes are paving the way to more integration of the suburbs.

Two reasons for the increased lowering of racial barriers in suburban areas appear to be the poor state of the economy and a growing awareness of the myriad laws and court rulings against housing discrimination.

"You got the bucks, we love you," remarked Michael Davis, manager of Oakwood Apartments in the San Fernando Valley.

Paul Epstein, executive director of the Fair Housing Center of Chicago, said the impact of fair housing laws and court rulings was just beginning to be felt, "in addition to many people of goodwill who always wanted to do what was right." He said that blacks move for the same reason as whites, and predicted a new era in integrated housing as more blacks and other minorities begin taking advantage of access to the suburbs.

Income Parity Achieved

The easier access is also attributable to the improved economic status of a small minority of young blacks. Recent reports by the Bureau of the Census show that, while the income gap between black families and white families is getting wider, young black college graduates have achieved income parity with their white counterparts.

While it appears that the overwhelming majority of young blacks would prefer to live in the city, a spot check of several cities found black residents in each complex except for one in Kansas City. Other cities included were Boston, Cleveland, Detroit, Miami, Los Angeles and Atlanta.

For the most part, black residents of suburban apartment complexes say they find no real problems. However, several said they had experienced at least one incident, and some said they felt unwelcome in suburban shopping centers.

B. Vivian Aplin, a reporter with the Cleveland Plain Dealer who lives in suburban Euclid, recalled that a "white derelict walked up to me on the street and stared, and then launched into a string of expletives."

Sharon Williams, an operational research analyst with the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston, said a group of white children once yelled at her, "Aunt Jemima forgot her syrup." Miss Williams lives in the Mystic Garden apartments in Arlington, Mass.

Shopkeepers' Attitudes Objectionable

Jacquelyn Lonian, a high school guidance counselor who lives in Windsor Village Apartments in Waltham, Mass., said she objects to the attitude of some shopkeepers in the area.

"Things like going into a store and being watched," she complained. "I think, sometimes, because I'm black I'm being watched extra carefully."

"Or walking into the bank and having the guard appear, as though I'm going to rob the bank. Also I found a different reaction when I wear my hair straight and when I wear an Afro. They are really on guard when I wear an Afro."

Some blacks said it is much easier to rent suburban apartments now than it was five years ago. Gladys Gunn, a Dayton, Ohio, educator, said she resorted to subterfuge to get an apartment in Salem Woods Apartments. She said she had a white friend go to the office and pay the first month rent when she became the first black to move in. Others followed fairly easily, she said.

Crow, Pop & Land, developer of some of the most popular singles complexes in Atlanta, was accused of discrimination last October by the Justice Department. As a result, the company now has to make quarterly reports for a year on the racial makeup of its apartments. It was also ordered to advertise in all news media, including the black news media, using ads that showed integrated settings.

Despite the order, one of the company's complexes, Riverbend Apartments, which has 1,500 residents, is only 1% black.

Uneasiness Said Justified

The uneasiness of blacks might be justified in some cases. For example, a black man inquired about an apartment at the Unicorn Club Apartments in Kansas City and was given a quick tour of a model apartment, the bar and restaurant.

A young white woman who inquired about an apartment shortly after him was shown the workings of the security system, including computerized keys that cannot be duplicated. She was also shown the swimming pool with its waterfall and the party room with its bandstand, and was told of a calendar of activities for every night. She was also told that a party was being held the same night.

Also in Kansas City, the manager of Malibu Royale Apartments confided to a reporter that the place was all-white. Asked how it was kept that way, the manager, Marci Hammons, said she evicted a black family three years ago for non-payment of rent.

"I've had blacks look at the place, but they didn't take it," Mrs. Hammons remarked. "I guess they don't want to live where there aren't any other blacks."

Jobs Concern NAACP

Washington — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, concluding its 66th annual convention here, called Friday on civil rights enforcement agencies, the courts and Congress to protect the job rights of minorities and women during the recession.

Portuguese Chided

Lisbon, Portugal — Culminating hours of conflict that was said to have reached the highest circles of the ruling armed forces, thousands of extreme leftists marched through Lisbon protesting what they charged were fascist and capitalist maneuvers against the revolution. This made President Francisco da Costa Gomes urgently appeal over the radio for calm and discipline.

Two-Tier Fare Urged

Washington — Transportation secretary William T. Coleman believes that hard-pressed urban transit systems should examine the possibility of installing a two-tier fare system, charging higher fares to all but low-income passengers. "Relief recipients, job-seekers and others perhaps should be treated like senior citizens," Coleman said.

"There was blood and pieces of bodies everywhere. Blood already was flowing into the gutter ... Some of the victims didn't have any feet at all." Some Israelis tried to beat up Arab passers-by and stone cars, but police intervened and appealed to the public to keep calm.

Roadblocks went up quickly and about 60 Arabs were detained. Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Defense Minister Shimon Peres inspected the site and drove away refusing comment.

Mayor Teddy Kollek said, "Our answer to this dastardly act will be to continue cementing the unification of Jerusalem." Israel captured the Arab sector in 1967 and annexed it.

In Beirut, the Palestinian guerrilla command said, "The Palestinian revolution is responsible for the heroic operation by a unit of the martyr Farid Bobali Squad in the heart of Jerusalem."

It did not identify Bobali, but presumably he was a guerrilla killed in a previous attack.

The bomb, believed to be made of explosives wrapped around two mortar shells, exploded on Jerusalem's main commercial street, Jaffa Road opposite Zion Square, at about 10 a.m. Israeli time.

The ban was Mrs. Gandhi's third major move since her June 26 emergency decree suspending civil liberties in the country traditionally known as the world's largest democracy.

First she rounded up all key non-Communist opposition leaders and clamped them under arrest. Then she ordered a sweeping economic reform designed to ensure popular support for her tactics.

Her ban, put into action by Home Minister K. Brahmananda Reddy, affected fringe groups on the far right and far left. It excluded opposition parties that participate in Indian political life through normal parliamentary means.

But these parties already have been decapitated by the arrests of their leaders and crippled by a decree banning antigovernment comment or demonstrations. No resistance was reported as police swooped down on the parties' offices and sealed them shut.

The result of a week of emergency has thus been to leave Mrs. Gandhi with all power in her hands, free from any effective opposition except outside the law.

Major right-wing groups outlawed under the ban were Jamaat Islam, a radical Moslem faction; Anand Marg, a secret band of fanatic Hindus; and Rashtriya Swayamsewak Sangh — RSS — paramilitary arm of the right-wing Hindu nationalist Jana Sangh party.

A Hindu extremist convicted of assassinating independence leader Mohandas K. Gandhi in 1948 belonged to the RSS. The group was banned for several months following his death. But Mrs. Gandhi's sweeping ban was unprecedented in the 28-year history of Indian independence.

The chief left-wing factions declared illegal were the Communist party of India Marxist-Leninist, the Maoist Communist Center and a batch of regionally based revolutionary splinter groups. None has wide membership as far as is publicly known.

Outstanding Loan Total Is $1 Billion

Omaha (AP) — The Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Omaha now has more than $1 billion in loans outstanding to production credit associations in the four-state area of Iowa, South Dakota, Wyoming and Nebraska.

Bank President Don Hovendick said the current loan level, which has doubled in the last five years, is a healthy sign of growth.

Although concerned over unstable prices and costs in agriculture, Hovendick said he is optimistic about the financial condition of Midwest agriculture, and viewed livestock prices and ample rain as favorable indicators.

He said the tight money situation in recent years is easing with interest rates beginning to drop.

Hovendick said, "We expect operating credit industries to be tapering down interest rates toward the eight and one-half to 8% levels by the end of this year."

The bank provides funds for production credit associations which make short and intermediate-term loans to farmers and ranchers for operating expenses.

NW Bell: Job Freeze Is Prolonged By PSC

Omaha (AP) — A Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. spokesman says the Nebraska Public Service Commission's refusal to grant the full amount of the firm's request for a rate increase means that a hiring freeze will continue.

The freeze has been in effect while the rate request was being considered. Jim Atkinson, company news supervisor, said the freeze was brought about by the company's "deteriorating economic situation," and company officials said the situation wasn't helped by the commission's action.

The firm's Nebraska work force totals 4,458.

Atkinson said company officials are studying the commission order, and that it is too early to say whether the firm plans to ask for a new hearing or will file a new rate request.

Northwestern Bell also could appeal to the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Omaha Banker Warns Of Fraud In Saving Plan

Omaha (AP) — A Northwestern National Bank official says persons claiming to be representatives of the bank are calling Omaha residents about a bonus savings plan offer providing 8% interest.

Victor Hoelting, bank vice president and cashier, said he has received information from two persons who said they had received calls from persons who asked to come to their homes and discuss the fake plan.

Hoelting said both persons refused to make an appointment. He said the callers might try to get cash or a savings account number, which could be used to fraudulently withdraw funds, if a victim would agree to put his money in the bogus savings plan.

2 Dams Release Record Amounts Of Water, Power

Omaha (AP) — Water is being released at the highest rate on record from the Fort Peck and Garrison Dams, the Missouri River Division of the Corps of Engineers reported Thursday.

Heavy mountain snowmelt and excessive rain in the upper Missouri River Basin is continuing large inflows of water into both reservoirs.

Brig. Gen. Philip T. Boerger, head of the division, said that if the Fort Peck Dam had not been constructed in northeast Montana, the downstream flow would have been three times as great this past week.

The unusually high storage and release levels resulted in another record for the main stem system. The Reservoir Control Center reported generation of more than 49 million kilowatt hours Tuesday.

Life Begins At Forty: Financial Advice Sought

By JOANNE FARRIS
QUESTION: — "My brother died recently. I kept money for him, and he managed all our financial affairs. Now, I must acquire knowledge of money matters which is completely beyond my ken. Whom can I turn to?"

"The executor of my brother's estate tells me to avoid bankers as they are too conservative. A widow in my church circle tells me to avoid brokers for they are too reckless with other people's money."

"Can my brother's accountant take good care of my money for me? I am 62 and in excellent health, so I want my funds to be safe as long as I live."

ANSWER: — You are in the same boat that many widows find themselves in. You've done the domestic planning and work, and the financial arrangements were taken over by your brother. The tragedy in all this is that it would not have been difficult for him to have introduced you into this strange but interesting world of money management to prepare you for today.

No matter. You can get the assistance you want, but you are going to have to look around for it. Your situation is a bit like that of a person who moves to a new town and wants to get a doctor to take care of her. You have already heard two conflicting opinions. What you need to do now is to check out some of the options for yourself.

If I were you, I would seek a stockbroker who has a good reputation which he has earned by having given good advice and service to persons you know and respect. If you do go this route, be sure you can get along with him. He's not going to be able to help you in the important area of confidence if you don't like or trust him.

My second choice — and in your case if security of present income is your only serious concern, perhaps this would be your first step — is to turn to the trust department of your bank. It will provide careful, conservative management of your money.

Trust departments move slowly; sometimes they seem almost stodgy. But, they provide a degree of safety which the stockbroker cannot approach.

Of course, if the bank puts you into stocks, it cannot safeguard your money any more surely than the broker can. After all, the stock market is essentially a public auction, and every investor should be aware of that.

Your brother's CPA would be my last choice as an investment adviser. He's the one to talk to about making the best use of tax advantages in certain types of investment choices.

A wise lawyer told me long ago that in financial matters it is better to err on the side of caution. You have many years ahead of you, and you want to have the money to enjoy them. Don't let anyone pressure you into any hasty decisions.

I suggest that you do some reading, perhaps recommended by your librarian or a broker you know, in the area of money management. You may find it exciting. You can probably find a course on finance at a local college.

The more you get to know about financial matters, the easier it will be for you to find just the adviser who is best for you.

Meet Star Carrier David Peck

David Peck of Lincoln likes the money and the business experience he gets on his paper route.

A carrier salesman for The Lincoln Star for one year, David has substantially increased the size of his route while acquiring a reputation for "great" service and all-around business ability.

In his spare time David likes to swim, build models and collect baseball cards.

He also plays the trumpet in the school band and pitches for a local baseball team.

David's plans for the summer include swimming as much as possible and a vacation trip to the Black Hills of South Dakota.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Peck, are so enthusiastic about their son's business venture that they feel every boy and girl should have a paper route. It teaches young people responsibility, thrift and keeps them active, say the pleased parents.

Breakfast With Bob

As the holiday weekend started local authorities apparently hadn't made up their minds as to whether the University of Nebraska Board of Regents had broken the state's new open meetings law when it met secretly at breakfast June 21 with NU Athletic Director Bob Devaney.

The contents of a letter — not since released — from Regent Robert Prokop to State Sen. George Syas and allegedly critical of the quality of the overall NU athletic program has aroused more interest among the public than the allegation by State Sen. Gary Anderson and others that the regents were indeed in violation of the law. The letter was one of the prime topics of conversation at the meeting, according to sources.

But while prosecutors debate whether misdemeanor charges should be filed against the regents for breaking the open meetings law, officials at the university are busily trying to set the record straight. Regent Ed Schwartzkopf of Lincoln said Wednesday there was no intention on the part of the university governing board to violate the new open meetings law. "If you're going to violate something, you don't send a letter announcing it," Schwartzkopf said. A letter sent to the regents but not to the media said, "as a reminder, the June meeting of the board of regents will be held in Lincoln on Saturday, June 21. We will start with a breakfast at the Nebraska Center at 7 a.m."

Meanwhile, William F. Swanson, corporation secretary to the board of regents and a university vice president, said "no one intentionally set out in scheduling the breakfast to violate the open meeting law. There's no question but what we intend to abide by the law. . . I can say this: in the future there is not going to be any question of any kind on this."

Adding it all up, it looks as if the board is saying, "we did not break the law and it will never happen again."

Hatred At Pine Ridge

FBI Director Clarence Kelley denies that some of his agents have vowed to kill one Indian for each of their colleagues who have been killed by Indians or who might lose their lives in the future. The FBI's professionalism precludes being motivated by vengeance, Kelley indicates, although most people would agree that agents can't really be blamed for being angered by the ambush killings last week.

This week, Indians crossing Iowa were said to have nearly lynched a truck driver who accidentally struck one of their vehicles. The Indians, on the way to South Dakota to the reservation where the killings took place, were reportedly brandishing knives and hatchets at a rest stop on the Iowa highway.

Reports from the Pine Ridge reservation tell of seething hatreds now erupting: Indian against white, Indian against Indian, white against Indian.

The problems on the reservation are said to be so complex and long-standing and the Indian population, or much of it, so alienated from mainstream American society, that there seems to be no hope of solving them.

It is a grim picture which should sadden even the habitual optimist.

And it is certain that the violence and bloodshed won't begin to diminish until cool heads prevail.

Blood hatreds among the Indians themselves must be allowed to burn out. Reservation politics must be put aside. Innocent Indians should not be treated as guilty parties as federal agents look for the killers of the two FBI men and the Indian victim. If hatred and vengeance show too much, there is every probability that the list of dead will grow longer.

And even as passions violently cool over this latest outbreak of violence, it will regrettably be remembered that barring miracles, the American Indian will become ever more alienated from the rest of society and another explosive incident will be but a spark away.

Representative John V. McCollister's recent statement that the $55 billion Social Security trust fund will be depleted by 1980 raises a question of public responsibility. His headline does not reveal a high order of statesmanship. Either he is telling an untruth, or he is not up to his job by not being aware of the facts.

Certainly the subject he chose is not one to play politics with, as Barry Goldwater also attempted to do in 1964. There is too much concern by 31 million Americans who receive Social Security benefit checks each month and the 100 million who are working and paying contributions out of earnings. Both groups have sufficient financial problems without the burden of worry whether payments might be exhausted at retirement age.

McCollister claims wages would be 15% higher, inflation 28% lower and the Gross National Product increased by $120 billion with Social Security eliminated. It is an astonishing proposition — one that does not even grasp the complication of a half-truth.

Everyone who has merely made a casual survey of the subject is aware that Social Security is one of the most stabilizing influences we have in our economy. This factor becomes dramatically apparent in uncertain financial times, such as we are now experiencing. Its payments make the difference between having a bad recession or an unbearable depression. Current unemployment would be more severe than it is now if monthly checks from this source were not forthcoming. Corporations know this. So do small business men, farmers and labor. But apparently these simple facts have not reached a limited congressional minority.

It is a part of human nature that most citizens feel some resentment when Social Security deductions are made from their paychecks. It is similar to the emotion regarding state and federal taxes. But at age 62 or 65 their view on the subject reverses itself. They then feel happy to have made these deductions and often wish they had been larger so their monthly checks could be higher.

For many, this federally regulated insurance is all they have to subsist on. Others, with supplementary incomes, use it as an additional bonus for maintaining their customary life-style. In either case, it is regarded as a blessing.

The people who have worked close to the Social Security system are the first to admit that the $55 billion in reserve funds, $46 billion for cash and the benefits program and $9 billion for Medicare hospital insurance, is currently under a heavy drain. But they also state — and this is what is often ignored — is that it was planned that way. A part of the blueprint was to draw from a large reserve during times of recessions. When high employment resumes its normal pattern, withdrawal from this fund becomes unnecessary. Income and output will again be self-supporting, as it has been for 35 years.

A reputable financial analyst says if prices were to rise at an annual rate of 2% and wages at the rate of 5%, the present financing would be entirely adequate. This, she adds, would be true even with the changed ratio of retirees to working people due to changes in the birth rate.

Federal law requires a special review of the program every four years. Its purpose is to keep it both safe and effective. These studies have shown it to have a sound foundation for both current and distant future projections.

Statements that Social Security will be bankrupt by 1980 is a needless scare tactic, according to such an articulate and responsible authority as Elliot L. Richardson, former Health, Education and Welfare secretary. Officials who followed him in office, William Cohen, Robert Finch and John Flemming, fully concur. As does Representative Ullman, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, while Rep. James Burke, chairman of the Social Security subcommittee, said: "I can assure the people now on Social Security and those who expect to be on Social Security in the future that money to pay their benefits as they come due will be available as needed."

Social Security, in spite of headline hunters, is a built-in part of American life. It is here to stay.

RONALD REAGAN

CALIFORNIA — Ten years ago the Food Stamp Act was passed to help America's needy get a nutritious diet. Today, the program is so far out of control, its operations resemble a mad-hatter's tea party.

Help may be on the way. A bipartisan Food Stamp Reform Act of 1975 has been introduced in Congress which could bring the program under control and save the taxpayers $2 billion a year, while at the same time increasing benefits for the truly needy an average of 29%.

In 1965 there were fewer than half a million food stamp recipients. The program cost $36 million that year.

This year, it's estimated there will be 19 million Americans on food stamps at a cost to the taxpayer of $5.2 billion — an increase of more than 14,000%!

That first year, one in every 439 Americans was on food stamps; today, it's one in 13, and soaring upward. It could be much worse; potentially one-fourth of the entire population — 52.8 million persons — is technically eligible. Are there really that many poor and hungry people to feed? No, the problem lies with the liberal, loose eligibility standards for food stamps.

Last year in California, I appointed a governor's task force to study the Food Stamp Program, along with one which was reviewing the effectiveness of our 1971 Aid-To-Families-With-Dependent-Children (AFDC) welfare reforms (we had reduced the rolls by nearly 400,000, while raising grants an average of 43%).

The food stamp task force found that many college students were technically eligible and drawing stamps, though they came from wealthy families. There was no maximum income limit to qualify for food stamps. There was no minimum age requirement, so that teen-age runaways living in communes could even qualify. And, unlike the welfare program, food stamp rules did not prohibit the rearrangement of one's assets in order to qualify.

Other problems involved lax physical security and movement of the stamps and inadequate counterfeiting safeguards.

Most of the reforms the California task force recommended, however, had to be accomplished at the federal level, since the program is federally mandated.

For several months a group of U.S. senators and congressmen has been studying these recommendations and others and has incorporated a number of them in the new reform bill now cosponsored by 59 members of the House and 17 senators.

Their objective is to reverse the explosive trend of the program. They are alarmed that more than half the potential recipients — 57% — have incomes above the poverty line.

Their bill spells out in detail the reforms needed to bring it under control. Basically, the bill relates eligibility to that of AFDC and general welfare programs providing for similar eligibility standards. This should eliminate, for example, the voluntarily unemployed, strikers, college students subsidized by their parents and people who transfer assets to others in order to qualify.

Among other things, the bill would require able-bodied recipients without children under age 6 to register for work and seek it, or to enter community work training programs if their state has them. This is not required now, hence the bill's objective: no rewards for idleness.

If the bill passes, the program will move out of the Department of Agriculture, which got it in the first place because the intent was to feed the needy from agricultural surpluses. The surpluses are long gone, but the program now accounts for more than 60 per cent of the USDA budget. It would move to Health, Education and Welfare, which administers the rest of the nation's welfare programs.

While bringing the food stamp mess under control, the government will upgrade the diet formula for recipients, raising coupon allotments by 20 per cent, and will reduce stamp costs for the aged.

Rarely enough these days does Congress consider the hard-pressed taxpayer. With this bill it does, while also helping the truly needy (not to be confused with the wanty, a far different and much larger group).

Comments From One Who Knows

Phoenix, Ariz.

I have read the articles that appeared recently about the state's new helmet law, and would like to make a comment. I'm a sergeant with the Phoenix Police Department and was on the Lincoln police force. I have taught "Traffic Survival" and "Defensive Driving" for the State of Arizona. I have investigated over 150 fatal accidents, many of which involved motorcycles, and I teach accident investigation at a junior college in Phoenix.

For educational use, I have made additional follow-ups on my investigations and others. What the motorcycle riders do not seem to realize is that the state is not just trying to protect them and tell them what to wear. They are trying to protect everyone in the state. Something I have found was that the driver of the vehicle which hits a cyclist is not in violation of the law is put through unnecessary mental strain, thinking the cyclist might have been saved had he worn a helmet. One of these drivers I checked on became a patient in a mental hospital, which the people of Arizona pay for. There were two cyclists who did not die from their injuries. One now receives industrial compensation because he rode a motorcycle making deliveries. That money comes from the State of Arizona which the people pay for. The other cyclist became a resident of the V.A. hospital which we all pay for. These are only some of the facts that I obtained which show the State of Arizona was trying to protect everyone, not just the cyclist. I am sure the same could be found in Nebraska.

When Arizona was proposing its helmet law, the same things were brought up about why it should be passed, but the riders there added the idea that the cyclists would get their heads baked in helmets. Cyclists said they didn't think they should be required to put out the money for helmets, giving a large price range.

I rode motorcycles on the police force for over two years in Phoenix, wearing a helmet for an eight-hour shift, and will agree they get warm and even hot, heat on the head is better than hood or pavement. As for my feeling about the cost of helmets, a cyclist should buy the helmet to fit the value of his head. This could mean from $12 to hundreds of dollars. It could also mean that some could go without helmets. The helmet is designed to protect what some cyclists refuse to use. I must add that I am glad to see the Lincoln Police Department has good helmets for its motorcycle officers.

I think Nebraska law-makers are doing a wonderful thing. They are trying to protect everyone and for the great job they are doing, the federal government does give a gas tax rebate to the state which will result in better streets for all to use.

I hope all the cyclists will accept the law and have many hours of safe riding. We have enjoyed our vacation here in Nebraska and Lincoln, and I see many good changes since I left more than 17 years ago.

Musk Thistle Pest

Ceresco, Neb.

After another hot sweaty evening of chopping must thistle, I can't put off writing this letter. As a northern Lancaster County farmer, I have never allowed a musk thistle that has shown up on my farm to go to seed. Yet each year the number of musk thistle showing up on my farm increases. Musk thistle, a primary noxious weed under Nebraska law, is supposed to be controlled by the land owner. If the landowner fails to control the thistle, the State of Nebraska is ultimately responsible to step in and see that the control work is done. One plant allowed to go to seed can have as many as 10,000 seeds.

A good share of the farmers in Nebraska are quite conscientious about controlling this serious weed pest. There are always a few who for some reason or another don't give a darn and make no effort to control this noxious weed. The county noxious weed office is supposed to enforce the weed law within their respective counties. Where are the Lancaster County weed men. I have seen them only once this year spraying a broome roadside ditch. Why, I don't know. As one drives the county roads, it is not uncommon to see fields of 240 acres or more, purple with musk thistle. These are the places the weed district men should concentrate on.

Surely Nebraska Director of Agriculture Kreuscher and his men cannot say they are not aware of the situation.

The Whole Spectrum

Lincoln, Neb.

I am writing to express my dismay over an unfortunate article which appeared in the Saturday, June 28, Star, entitled: "Lincoln Has Racist Tone, Blacks Feel."

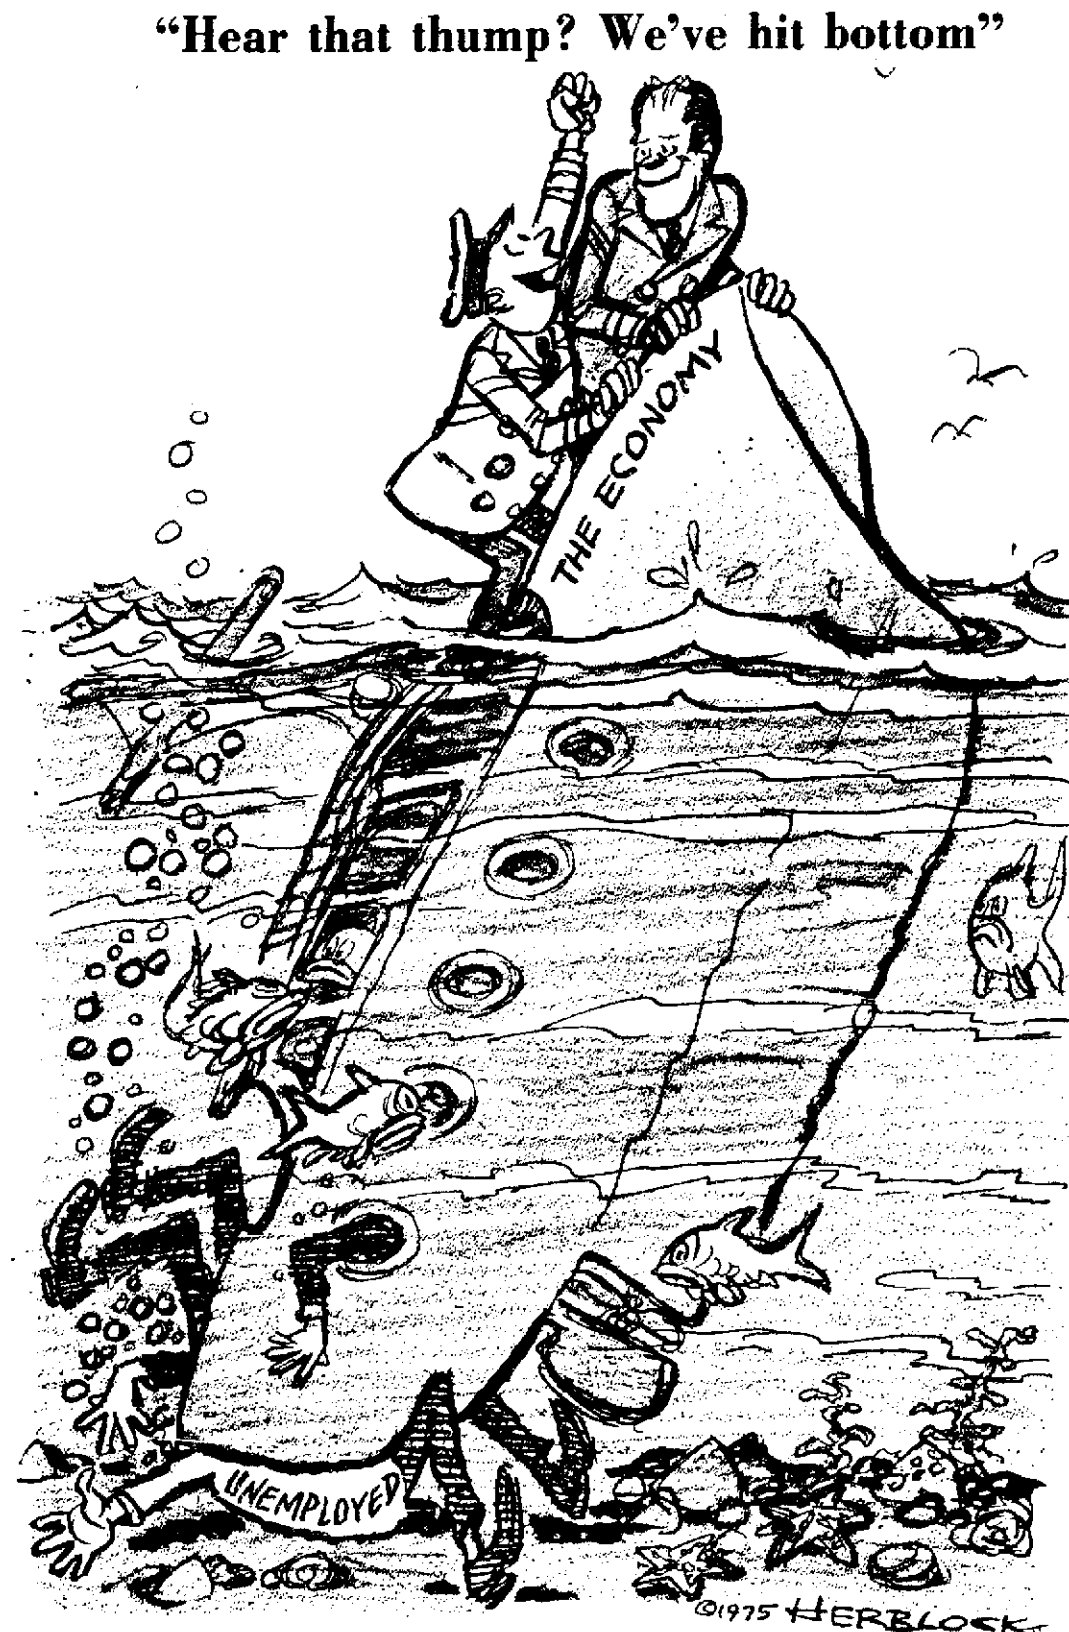

It was both inflammatory and biased, and served only to cause friction in the community and to hold up the head of the old dragon of racial mistrust which could cause the upheaval of much that has been accomplished to right the injustices which these people and other minorities have suffered.

We need to view the whole spectrum. It was journalism at its worst. A good journalist would have brought out some of the advances made to insure the rights of blacks and all the other people in the imperfect world who have suffered discrimination, injustice and psychosocial damage due to the thoughtlessness of a few insecure people.

These others I speak of are the physically handicapped, the mentally handicapped, the poor of all races, the Indian, the Mexican American, unpopular religious groups, anyone who is different by birth or choice.

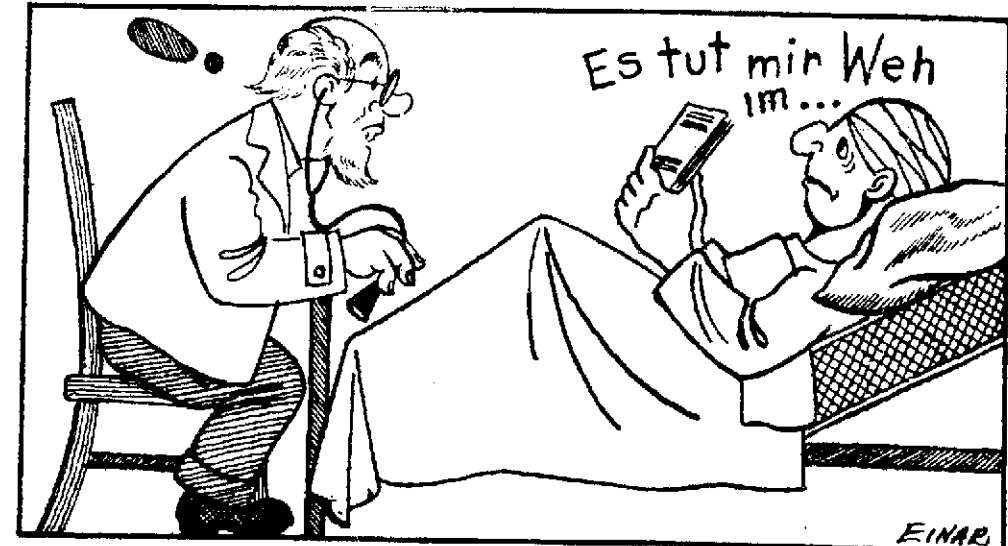

Mine is not an "ivory tower" assertion for I am a member of one of these minorities. But I feel that the writers of this article have failed to encompass the strides that have occurred in the past 10 years and are still operating on the plateau of the early 60's.

One's Sprain In Spain Is Mainly Under 'Pain'

NEW YORK — 'Tis time to turn tourist, and if you're rich enough to spring for foreign travel, Blue Cross is out with a few handy-dandy hints on how to tell the doctor where it hurts when neither of you speak the same language.

Say you're in an elegant restaurant in Paris and the waiter has just presented you with the check. Before the heart attack gets too far along, wouldn't you like to be able to say, "Help, I need a doctor!" in understandable French?

Well, it's right there on Page 8, along with the translations in German, Italian and Spanish. And I may never cross another border without tucking this jewel inside my passport.

Ask any seasoned traveler; it's the best idea anybody's had since they invented drip-dry undies. It's called "A Foreign Language Guide to Health Care" and it's free (Which you won't be able to say for much of anything else on your trip abroad.)

Tourist agents can load you up with maps and guide books, but do those help when you break a bone in Berlin? Or sprain something in Spain? You may be able to find all the three-star eateries in France, but how do you find a doctor or a dentist?

You could always call the American or British embassies, of course. If you can hobble to the phone. And if you have enough strength to cope with the hopeless intricacies of foreign telephones.

Twenty minutes with a Spanish operator will bring on a terminal sinking spell even if you felt fine when you dropped in your first peso.

But for emergencies, it's all here in 96 pages of medical phrases, spelled out in four languages with phonetic pronunciations. And if the "medico" or "arst" or "medico" wants to know how high your fever is, there's also a table that converts Fahrenheit to Centigrade.

That's if you use your own thermometer. If you borrow one from the hotel, it might help to realize that, should it ever read 41.1 centigrade, that's 106 degrees and you'd better flip fast to Page 8 for "Call an ambulance!"

If you're in a hurry (and chances are you will be if you're using the booklet) the phrases are grouped into categories: "at the hospital" . . . "at the doctor's" . . . "at the dentist's" . . . etc.

And, under first-things-first, four ways to ask: "What are your rates?"

It's under "dentsits" (a little unconscious humor here) that you learn to say "Ouch!" in four languages: "Aie!" (French) . . . "Au!" (German) . . . "Ahi!" (Italian) . . . and "Ay!" (Spanish).

Also, if he gets too darning with the drill, "Stop!" That's "Arretez!" (French) . . . "Halten sie an!" (German) . . . "Arresti!" (Italian) and "Pare usted!" (Spanish).

You also (depending on what you gazed the night before) have a four-language selection for one of the more common phrases: "I have diarrhea." If you've gone overboard on German goodies and your problem is the other way around, what you tell the "arst" is "Ich bin verstopft."

And now that Blue Cross has saved our lives overseas, maybe they'll follow this up with a booklet on how to talk to their computers in a language they understand.

Regent Ed Schwartzkopf of Lincoln

said Wednesday there was no intention on the part of the university governing board to violate the new open meetings law. "If you're going to violate something, you don't send a letter announcing it," Schwartzkopf said. A letter sent to the regents but not to the media said, "as a reminder, the June meeting of the board of regents will be held in Lincoln on Saturday, June 21. We will start with a breakfast at the Nebraska Center at 7 a.m."

Meanwhile, William F. Swanson, corporation secretary to the board of regents and a university vice president, said "no one intentionally set out in scheduling the breakfast to violate the open meeting law. There's no question but what we intend to abide by the law . . . I can say this: in the future there is not going to be any question of any kind on this."

Adding it all up, it looks as if the board is saying, "we did not break the law and it will never happen again."

Hatred At Pine Ridge

FBI Director Clarence Kelley denies that some of his agents have vowed to kill one Indian for each of their colleagues who have been killed by Indians or who might lose their lives in the future. The FBI's professionalism precludes being motivated by vengeance, Kelley indicates, although most people would agree that agents can't really be blamed for being angered by the ambush killings last week.

This week, Indians crossing Iowa were said to have nearly lynched a truck driver who accidentally struck one of their vehicles. The Indians, on the way to South Dakota to the reservation where the killings took place, were reportedly brandishing knives and hatchets at a rest stop on the Iowa highway.

Reports from the Pine Ridge reservation tell of seething hatreds now erupting: Indian against white, Indian against Indian, white against Indian.

The problems on the reservation are said to be so complex and long-standing and the Indian population, or much of it, so alienated from mainstream American society, that there seems to be no hope of solving them.

It is a grim picture which should sadden even the habitual optimist.

And it is certain that the violence and bloodshed won't begin to diminish until cool heads prevail.

Blood hatreds among the Indians themselves must be allowed to burn out. Reservation politics must be put aside. Innocent Indians should not be treated as guilty parties as federal agents look for the killers of the two FBI men and the Indian victim. If hatred and vengeance show too much, there is every probability that the list of dead will grow longer.

And even as passions ultimately cool over this latest outbreak of violence, it will regrettably be remembered that barring miracles, the American Indian will become ever more alienated from the rest of society and another explosive incident will be but a spark away.

Representative John Y. McCollister's recent statement that the $55 billion Social Security trust fund will be depleted by 1980 raises a question of public responsibility. His headline does not reveal a high order of statesmanship. Either he is telling an untruth, of which the nation has had too much saturation; or he is not up to his job by not being aware of the facts.

Certainly the subject he chose is not one to play politics with, as Barry Goldwater also attempted to do in 1964. There is too much concern by 31 million Americans who receive Social Security benefit checks each month and the 100 million who are working and paying contributions out of earnings. Both groups have sufficient financial problems without the burden of worry whether payments might be exhausted at retirement age.

McCollister claims wages would be 15% higher, inflation 28% lower and the Gross National Product increased by $120 billion with Social Security eliminated. It is an astonishing proposition — one that does not even carry the complication of a half-truth.

Everyone who has merely made a casual survey of the subject is aware that Social Security is one of the most stabilizing influences we have in our economy. This factor becomes dramatically apparent in uncertain financial times, such as we are now experiencing. Its payments make the difference between having a bad recession or an unbearable depression. Current unemployment would be more severe than it is now if monthly checks from this source were not forthcoming. Corporations know this. So do small business men, farmers and labor. But apparently these simple facts have not reached a limited congressional minority.

It is a part of human nature that most citizens feel some resentment when Social Security deductions are made from their paychecks. It is similar to the emotion regarding state and federal taxes. But at age 62 or 65 their view on the subject reverses itself. They then feel happy to have made these deductions and often wish they had been larger so their monthly checks could be higher.

For many, this federally regulated insurance is all they have to subsist on. Others, with supplementary incomes, use it as an additional bonus for maintaining their customary life-style. In either case, it is regarded as a blessing.

The people who have worked close to the Social Security system are the first to admit that the $55 billion in reserve funds, $46 billion for cash and the benefits program and $9 billion for Medicare hospital insurance, is currently under a heavy drain. But they also state — and this is what is often ignored — is that it was planned that way! A part of the blueprint was to draw from a large reserve during times of recessions. When high employment resumes its normal pattern, withdrawal from this fund becomes unnecessary. Income and outgo will again be self-supporting, as it has been for 35 years.

A reputable financial analyst says if prices were to rise at an annual rate of 2% and wages at the rate of 5%, the present financing would be entirely adequate. This, she adds, would be true even with the changed ratio of retirees to working people due to changes in the birth rate.

Federal law requires a special review of the program every four years. Its purpose is to keep it both safe and effective. These studies have shown it to have a sound foundation for both current and distant future projections.

Statements that Social Security will be bankrupt by 1980 is a needless scare tactic, according to such an articulate and responsible authority as Elliot L. Richardson, former Health, Education and Welfare secretary. Officials who followed him in office, William Cohen, Robert Finch and John Flemming, fully concur. As does Representative Ullman, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, while Rep. James Burke, chairman of the Social Security subcommittee, said: "I can assure the people now on Social Security and those who expect to be on Social Security in the future that money to pay their benefits as they come due will be available as needed."

Social Security, in spite of headline hunters, is a built-in part of American life. It is here to stay.

Reform For The Food Stamp Program

CALIFORNIA — Ten years ago the Food Stamp Act was passed to help America's needy get a nutritious diet. Today, the program is so far out of control, its operations resemble a mad-hatter's tea party.

Help may be on the way. A bipartisan Food Stamp Reform Act of 1975 has been introduced in Congress which could bring the program under control and save the taxpayers $2 billion a year, while at the same time increasing benefits for the truly needy an average of 29%.

In 1965 there were fewer than half a million food stamp recipients. The program cost $36 million that year.

This year, it's estimated there will be 19 million Americans on food stamps at a cost to the taxpayer of $5.2 billion — an increase of more than 14,000%!

That first year, one in every 439 Americans was on food stamps; today, it's one in 13, and soaring upward. It could be much worse; potentially one-fourth of the entire population — 52.8 million persons — is technically eligible. Are there really that many poor and hungry people to feed? No, the problem lies with the liberal, loose eligibility standards for food stamps.

Last year in California, I appointed a governor's task force to study the Food Stamp Program, along with one which was reviewing the effectiveness of our 1971 Aid-To-Families-With-Dependent-Children (AFDC) welfare reforms (we had reduced the rolls by nearly 400,000, while raising grants an average of 43%).

The food stamp task force found that many college students were technically eligible and drawing stamps, though they came from wealthy families. There was no maximum income limit to qualify for food stamps. There was no minimum age requirement, so that teen-age runaways living in communes could even qualify. And, unlike the welfare program, food stamp rules did not prohibit the rearrangement of one's assets in order to qualify.

Other problems involved lax physical security and movement of the stamps and inadequate counterfeiting safeguards.

Most of the reforms the California task force recommended, however, had to be accomplished at the federal level, since the program is federally mandated.

For several months a group of U.S. senators and congressmen has been studying these recommendations and others and has incorporated a number of them in the new reform bill now co-sponsored by 59 members of the House and 17 senators.

Their objective is to reverse the explosive trend of the program. They are alarmed that more than half the potential recipients — 57% — have incomes above the poverty line.

Their bill spells out in detail the reforms needed to bring it under control. Basically, the bill relates eligibility to that of AFDC and general welfare programs providing for similar eligibility standards. This should eliminate, for example, the voluntarily unemployed, strikers, college students subsidized by their parents and people who transfer assets to others in order to qualify.

Among other things, the bill would require able-bodied recipients without children under age 6 to register for work and seek it, or to enter community work training programs if their state has them. This is not required now, hence the bill's objective: no rewards for idleness.

If the bill passes, the program will move out of the Department of Agriculture, which got it in the first place because the intent was to feed the needy from agricultural surpluses. The surpluses are long gone, but the program now accounts for more than 60 per cent of the USDA budget. It would move to Health, Education and Welfare, which administers the rest of the nation's welfare programs.

While bringing the food stamp mess under control, the government will upgrade the diet formula for recipients, raising coupon allotments by 29 per cent, and will reduce stamp costs for the aged.

Rarely enough these days does Congress consider the hard-pressed taxpayer. With this bill it does, while also helping the truly needy (not to be confused with the wanty, a far different and much larger group).

Comments From One Who Knows

Phoenix, Ariz.

I have read the articles that appeared recently about the state's new helmet law, and would like to make a comment.

I'm a sergeant with the Phoenix Police Department and was on the Lincoln police force. I have taught "Traffic Survival" and "Defensive Driving" for the State of Arizona. I have investigated over 150 fatal accidents, many of which involved motorcycles, and I teach accident investigation at a junior college in Phoenix.

For educational use, I have made additional follow-ups on my investigations and others. What the motorcycle riders do not seem to realize is that the state is not just trying to protect them and tell them what to wear. They are trying to protect everyone in the state. Something I have found was that the driver of the vehicle which hits a cyclist is not in violation of the law is put through unnecessary mental strain, thinking the cyclist might have been saved had he worn a helmet. One of these drivers I checked on became a patient in a mental hospital, which the people of Arizona pay for. There were two cyclists who did not die from their injuries. One now receives industrial compensation because he rode a motorcycle making deliveries. That money comes from the State of Arizona which the people pay for. The other cyclist became a resident of the V.A. hospital which we all pay for. These are only some of the facts that I obtained which show the State of Arizona was trying to protect everyone, not just the cyclist. I am sure the same could be found in Nebraska.

When Arizona was proposing its helmet law, the same things were brought up about why it should be passed, but the riders there added the idea that the cyclists would get their heads bashed in helmets. Cyclists said they didn't think they should be required to put out the money for helmets, giving a large price range.

I rode motorcycles on the police force for over two years in Phoenix, wearing a helmet for an eight-hour shift, and will agree they get warm and even hot, heat on the head is better than hood or pavement. As for my feeling about the cost of helmets, a cyclist should buy the helmet to fit the value of his head. This could mean from $12 to hundreds of dollars. It could also mean that some could go without helmets. The helmet is designed to protect what some cyclists refuse to use. I must add that I am glad to see the Lincoln Police Department has good helmets for its motorcycle officers.

I think Nebraska law-makers are doing a wonderful thing. They are trying to protect everyone and for the great job they are doing, the federal government does give a gas tax rebate to the state which will result in better streets for all to use.

I hope all the cyclists will accept the law and have many hours of safe riding. We have enjoyed our vacation back in Nebraska and Lincoln, and I see many good changes since I left more than 17 years ago.

Musk Thistle Pest

Ceresco, Neb.

After another hot sweaty evening of chopping musk thistle, I can't put off writing this letter. As a northern Lancaster County farmer, I have never allowed a musk thistle that has shown up on my farm to go to seed. Yet each year the number of musk thistle showing up on my farm increases. Musk thistle, a primary noxious weed under Nebraska law, is supposed to be controlled by the land owner. If the landowner fails to control the thistle, the State of Nebraska is ultimately responsible to step in and see that the control work is done. One plant allowed to go to seed can have as many as 10,000 seeds.

A good share of the farmers in Nebraska are quite conscientious about controlling this serious weed pest. There are always a few who for some reason or another don't give a darn and make no effort to control this noxious weed. The county noxious weed office is supposed to enforce the weed law within their respective counties. Where are the Lancaster County weed men. I have seen them only once this year spraying a bromo roadside ditch. Why, I don't know. As one drives the county roads, it is not uncommon to see fields of 240 acres of more, purple with musk thistle. These are the places the weed district men should concentrate on.

Surely Nebraska Director of Agriculture Kreuscher and his men cannot say they are not aware of the situation.

The Whole Spectrum

Lincoln, Neb.

I am writing to express my dismay over an unfortunate article which appeared in the Saturday, June 28, Star, entitled: "Lincoln Has Racist Tone, Blacks Feel."

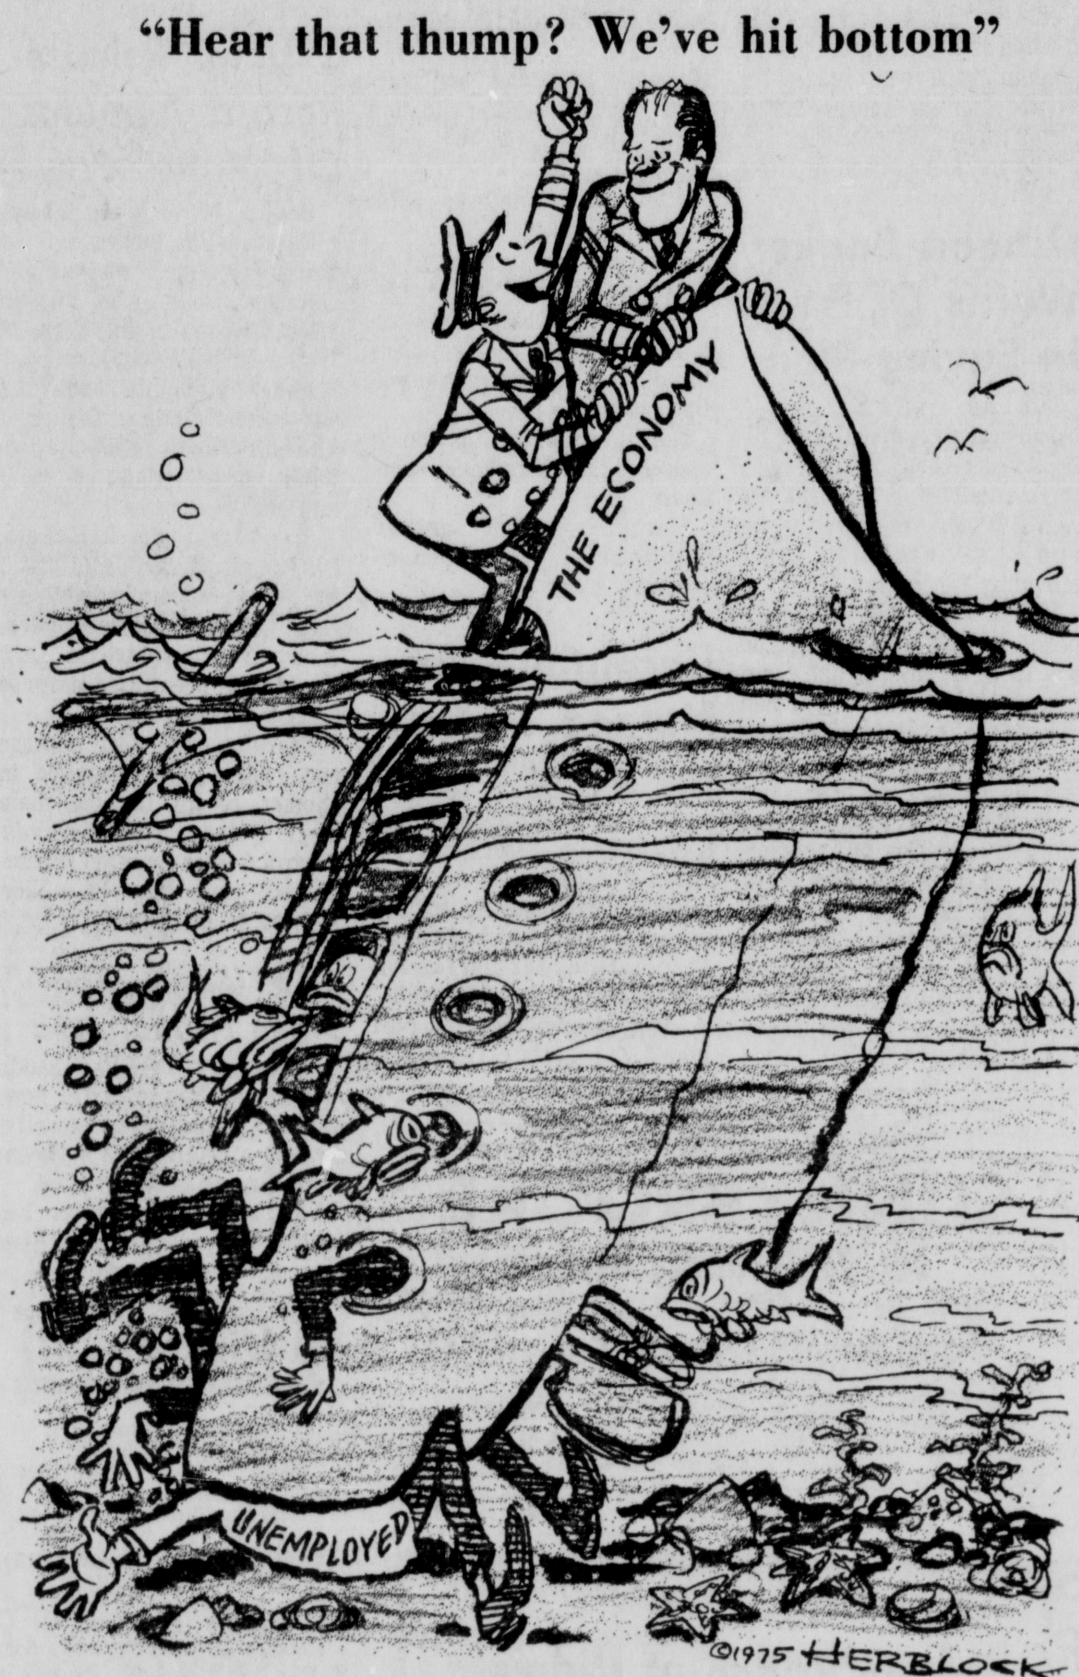

It was both inflammatory and biased, and served only to cause friction in the community and to hold up the head of the old dragon of racial mistrust which could cause the upheaval of much that has been accomplished to right the injustices which these people and other minorities have suffered.

We need to view the whole spectrum. It was journalism at its worst. A good journalist would have brought out all the advances made to insure the rights of blacks and all the other people in the imperfect world who have suffered discrimination, injustice and psychosocial damage due to the thoughtlessness of a few insecure people.

These others I speak of are the physically handicapped, the mentally handicapped, the poor of all races, the Indian, the Mexican American, unpopular religious groups, anyone who is different by birth or choice.

Mine is not an "ivorytower" assertion for I am a member of one of these minorities. But I feel that the writers of this article have failed to encompass the strides that have occurred in the past 10 years and are still operating on the plateau of the early 60's.

One's Sprain In Spain Is Mainly Under 'Pain'

NEW YORK — 'Tis time to turn tourist, and if you're rich enough to spring for foreign travel, Blue Cross is out with a few handy-dandy hints on how to tell the doctor where it hurts when neither of you speak the same language.

Say you're in an elegant restaurant in Paris and the waiter has just presented you with the check. Before the heart attack gets too far along, wouldn't you like to be able to say, "Help, I need a doctor!" in understandable French?

Well, it's right there on Page 8, along with the translations in German, Italian and Spanish. And I may never cross another border without tucking this jewel inside my passport.

Ask any seasoned traveler; it's the best idea anybody's had since they invented drip-dry undies. It's called "A Foreign Language Guide to Health Care" and it's free (Which you won't be able to say for much of anything else on your trip abroad.)

Tourist agents can load you up with maps and guide books, but do those help when you break a bone in Berlin? Or sprain something in Spain? You may be able to find all the three-star eateries in France, but how do you find a doctor or a dentist? You could always call the American or British embassies, of course. If you can hobble to the phone. And if you have enough strength to cope with the hopeless intricacies of foreign languages.

(Twenty minutes with a Spanish operator will bring on a terminal sinking spell even if you felt fine when you dropped in your first peso.)

But for emergencies, it's all here in 96 pages of medical phrases, spelled out in four languages with phonetic pronunciations. And if the "medicin" or "arst" or "medico" wants to know how high your fever is, there's also a table that converts Fahrenheit to Centigrade.

That's if you use your own thermometer. If you borrow one from the hotel, it might help to realize that, should it ever read 41.1 centigrade, that's 106 degrees and you'd better flip fast to Page 8 for "Call an ambulance!"

If you're in a hurry (and chances are you will be if you're using the booklet) the phrases are grouped into categories: "at the hospital" . . . "at the doctor's" . . . "at the dentist's" . . . etc.

And, under first-things-first, four ways to ask: "What are your rates?"

It's under "dentsits" (a little unconscious humor here) that you learn to say "Ouch!" in four languages: "Aie!" (French) . . . "Au!" (German) . . . "Ahi!" (Italian) . . . "Ay!" (Spanish). Also, if he gets too daring with the drill, "Stop!" That's "Arretez!" (French) . . . "Halten sie an!" (German) . . . "Arresti!" (Italian) and "Pare usted!" (Spanish).

You also (depending on what you guzzled the night before) have a four-language selection for one of the more common phrases: "I have diarrhea." If you've gone overboard on German goodies and your problem is the other way around, what you tell the "arzt" is "Ich bin verstopft."

And now that Blue Cross has saved our lives overseas, maybe they'll follow this up with a booklet on how to talk to their computers in a language they understand.

Gamblers Do Their Thing, Undaunted By Muddy Mess

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Undaunted by floodwaters that killed two persons and turned the famed Strip into a mass of mud, gamblers gambled as usual Friday as thousands of tourists jammed this desert resort at the start of a traditionally big weekend.

Shoeless gamblers, pant legs rolled up, continued to plunk coins into slot machines in some casinos as calf-deep water swirled around them after the freak storm Thursday.

Casinos canceled shows Thursday night and gambling dropped off just after the storm, but most resort complexes expected the holiday weekend to be one of the busiest this year.

The bodies of Mike Williams, 30, and Richard Hunkins, 24, both street department employees, were found in muddy embankments Friday near where their truck was engulfed by tidal waters.

Lightning struck several power lines, at least one home, and knocked three radio stations off the air briefly. A Delta Airlines jet was hit by lightning as it landed at McCarran International Airport, but there were no injuries.

Jim Scholl, Clark County flood control engineer, estimated damage to homes, streets and autos in excess of $1 million.

The highway patrol said major highways into the city were clear of water and mud Friday and traffic was heavy despite warnings of more heavy rains and flash flooding through the Fourth of July weekend.

Several bridges, underpasses and intersections were washed out and many streets remained inundated or clogged with mud. Police blocked traffic on a half-mile of the Strip from Flamingo Road to Tropicana Street.

Water stood 10 feet deep in some low-lying underpasses and parking lots and from the air streets resembled a canal system after Thursday's brief storm spilled 2½ inches of rain.

At Caesars Palace one of the largest Strip resorts, about 100 cars in a parking lot were submerged in 10-foot waters.

"Caesars is a mess," said a hotel desk employee at the spa. "The cars are standing on top of each other, the valet parking lot is really bad. Police are working to clear the mud away and trying to guide traffic around the Strip."

But Ed Suciu, a pit boss at the Marina hotel on the Strip, said the weekend still promised to find all hotels booked and gaming tables jammed with customers unless more flooding occurred.

Former world champion grand prix auto racer Stirling Moss, vacationing here from England, waded through waist-deep water to rescue three persons stranded in their cars by the flooding at Caesars.

"It was no big drama or anything," he said. "I saw the water rushing around the car and waded out to open the door for them."

"I thought people were exaggerating when they said all those cars were flooded," said Evelyn Kozma of Phoenix, Ariz. "I was amazed. I just couldn't believe it. But the flood wouldn't keep us away, we love Las Vegas."

Tom Diskin, spokesman for Caesars, said, "It looked like a river out there about 6 p.m. The water was picking up cars like they were toys."

Diskin said about 15 insurance firms had set up quarters inside the hotel to process claims for damaged cars.

It's A Boy

A newly born giraffe crashes down on its head Friday at the Brookfield Zoo near Chicago. The mother is Sandra, age 9. Her 150-pound baby boy was named Nelson in honor of senior zookeeper Meryle Nelson.

Mama giraffe was in labor for 2 hours and 40 minutes as the public watched. Less than an hour after he entered the world, Nelson was up and around.

Young Republicans Elect Mueller

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Jack Mueller, a 33-year-old consultant for the Wyoming Department of Education in Cheyenne, was elected national chairman of the Young Re-

Clyde McClean of Eugene, Ore., was elected vice chairman. Other new officers are Pat Kalmback of Somerville, N.J., secretary; Jerry Stromer of Kearney, Neb., treasurer, and Ann Quirk of San Antonio, Tex., assistant secretary.

Miss Quirk was the only candidate opposed for office

More Rain Forecast In Red River Valley

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — Rain-swollen rivers in the flood-stricken Red River Valley continued to overflow their banks Friday but showed signs of stabilizing, officials said.

However, the National Weather Service forecast a chance of thunderstorms through Saturday in eastern North Dakota area where more than a million acres of fertile farm land lay under water.

Damage from four days of heavy rains last week in North Dakota and Minnesota is estimated at $1.6 billion.

Valley farmers have reported 50 to 100 per cent losses to crops of wheat, barley, flax, soybeans, potatoes, sugarbeets and sunflowers.

The Red, which splits North Dakota from Minnesota, began to stabilize upstream Friday. The National Weather Service said it was holding steady at 33.1 feet at Fargo where flood stage is 17 feet.

Meanwhile, downstream on the Red River crests were yet to come.

For example, Halstad, Minn., was waiting for a record crest of 38.5 feet Saturday, and Grand Forks, where the flood level is 28 feet, was expecting a 42-43 foot crest by Tuesday.

The floods were brought on by four days of torrential downpours which began June 28. Some areas received 13 inches of rain.

Creighton Permits Counselor To Stay

Omaha (UPI) — Creighton University said Friday night a psychologist who testified during an obscenity trial last month will be retained by the university.

The Rev. Michael P. Sheridan, Creighton's vice president for student personnel, said the future status of Dr. Charlene G. Erskine was questioned following a news account of testimony she delivered in the trial of American Theater Corp. Prosecutor Questions Future Position

Omaha city prosecutor Gary Buccino, who handled the prosecution of the Pussy Cat Theater, was among those who publicly questioned whether Dr. Erskine should remain with Creighton University.

During the trial, Dr. Erskine testified that she sometimes used sexually-orientated literature as one of the means of treating those who came to her voluntarily.

Testimony Examined
Father Sheridan said he made the decision to retain the counseling psychologist following "careful examination of the testimony and subsequent discussion with Dr. Erskine."

"The news accounts were somewhat misleading in that they omitted many of the answers that qualified her testimony," Father Sheridan said. "I am convinced that Dr. Erskine is a psychologist with the highest professional standards that are compatible with Creighton University principles and Catholic morality."

Dr. Erskine, who has been at Creighton since last August, said the counseling and psychotherapy offered by her at the university's counseling center "conforms with the university's moral position on human sexuality."

No Conflict Seen
"I am aware of the continuing teaching of Catholicism regarding human sexuality," Dr. Erskine said, "and my psychotherapeutic practices don't conflict with these teachings."

Dr. Erskine, a practicing counselor for five years, earned her doctorate in counseling psychology from the University of Iowa and is a licensed psychologist in Nebraska and Iowa.

A jury hearing the trial in which Dr. Erskine testified found the American Theater Corp. guilty of several counts of obscenity for showing x-rated films at the Pussy Cat Theater in Omaha.

AIM Prayer Ceremony Is Held At Mt. Rushmore

MT. RUSHMORE, S.D. (AP) — Approximately 200 American Indian Movement members and supporters, saying white America has one more year to redeem its treatment of native Americans, staged a peaceful prayer ceremony and rally at the Mt. Rushmore national memorial.

The rally, which took place under a blistering sun amid tightened security precautions, initiated what AIM leaders called a national year of mourning for Indians killed by agents of the federal government.

AIM leader Dennis Banks told the crowd:

"For 199 years we've been on trial. For 199 years we've been found guilty. The next 200 years will not be like the last 200."

"All this year the United States of America will be on trial by Indian people. How white America handles Indian people in the next year will determine its punishment..."

AIM National Director Clyde Bellecourt said the Mt. Rushmore memorial, at which the likenesses of four presidents are portrayed on the mountain, desecrates the Sioux' "Paha Sapa," a traditional holy place to the Sioux.

Bellecourt said, "Today we are gathered in the sacred 'Paha Sapa' to honor the hundreds of chiefs and warriors who gave their lives that we may carry on. We will continue to boycott tourist attractions such as these not only in South Dakota but across the United States for the entire Bicentennial celebration that is coming up."

He added, "When July 4, 1976 comes, unless they honor their treaties and commitments, we will be back up here to blow out the candles on the Bicentennial cake."

The crowd was composed mainly of Indians, although a few whites joined the procession from Keystone, S.D., to the monument site, a walk of about four miles up a winding mountain road.

The Park Service and AIM leaders reached an agreement Wednesday allowing the demonstration. That agreement set down several provisions that the marchers had to meet.

Square D, Employees Reach Early Accord

Lincoln's Square D manufacturing plant and Local 2366 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers have begun a new three-year contract, although their former contract didn't expire until December.

Union and company officials had agreed not to reveal contract contents, according to a Square D spokesman asking to remain unidentified. But a Wall Street source close to negotiations said the contract's first year included a 15-cent maximum cost of living increase, a company-wide 40-cent an hour general wage hike and fringe benefits of 14 cents.

The new contract is part of coordinated national bargaining by Square D, since several plants other than Lincoln's had contracts that were to expire this month.

The new contract will run from July 1, 1975 to Oct. 1, 1978. The site of several strikes the past three years, the local plant, a major circuit breakers supplier, has maintained a policy of withholding figures on plant dollar volume and employee information.

Motorcyclist Is Badly Hurt

A 25-year-old Lincoln man was critically injured early Friday morning when his motorcycle hit a mailbox at 511 Eldora Lane, police said.

Gary P. Valverde, of 626 East-borough, was listed in critical condition at St. Elizabeth's Community Health Center Friday night with a broken neck. A passenger on the motorcycle, Randy S. Lewien, 18, of 8240 N. Hazelwood, was admitted for observation.

Police said Valverde was southbound on Eldora Lane between Joyce and 70th when his motorcycle left the road and hit the mailbox at 5:58 a.m.

Police ticketed Valverde for driving while intoxicated.

Major Markets Closed Friday

Major U.S. financial and commodity markets were closed Friday, in observance of Independence Day.

Lincoln Schools Get Instruments

Lincoln Public Schools have received $1,000 worth of used musical instruments, the result of a collection drive sponsored by the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce's Forward Lincoln Committee.

The instruments will be loaned to students who can't afford to buy or rent instruments, and thus would not be able to participate in school music programs.

Lincolinites Win United Church Elected Posts

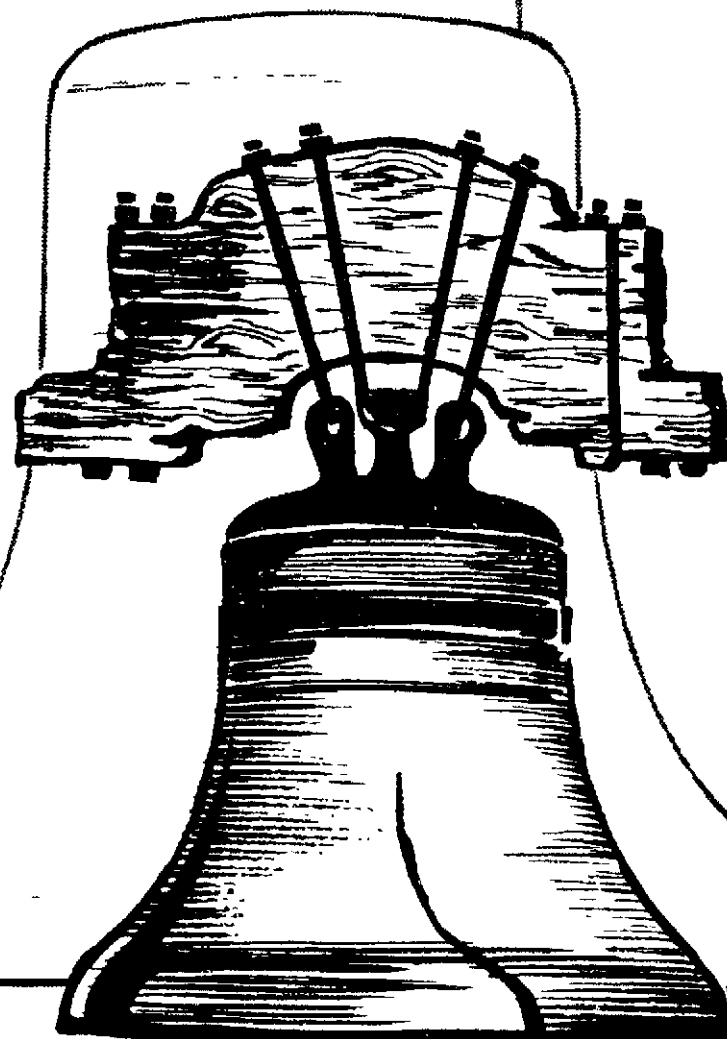

Two Lincoln residents have been elected to committees within the United Church of Christ, at the biennial meeting in Minneapolis of the denomination's tenth general synod.

The Rev. Otis E. Young was elected to the church's nominating committee, which selects candidates for the national offices and boards of national agencies in the church.

Sandra Rooney is a new member of the stewardship council, which advocates principles of Christian stewardship and raises church funds.

Gamblers Do Their Thing, Undaunted By Muddy Mess

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Undaunted by floodwaters that killed two persons and turned the famed Strip into a mass of mud, gamblers gambled as usual Friday as thousands of tourists jammed this desert resort at the start of a traditionally big weekend.

Shoeless gamblers, pant legs rolled up, continued to plunk coins into slot machines in some casinos as calf-deep water swirled around them after the freak storm Thursday.

Casinos canceled shows Thursday night and gambling dropped off just after the storm, but most resort complexes expected the holiday weekend to be one of the busiest this year.

The bodies of Mike Williams, 30, and Richard Hunkins, 24, both street department employees, were found in muddy embankments Friday near where their truck was engulfed by tidal waters.

Lightning struck several power lines, at least one home, and knocked three radio stations off the air briefly. A Delta Airlines jet was hit by lightning as it landed at McCarran International Airport, but there were no injuries.

Jim Scholl, Clark County flood control engineer, estimated damage to homes, streets and autos in excess of $1 million.

The highway patrol said major highways into the city were clear of water and mud Friday and traffic was heavy despite warnings of more heavy rains and flash flooding through the Fourth of July weekend.

Several bridges, underpasses and intersections were washed out and many streets remained inundated or clogged with mud. Police blocked traffic on a half-mile of the Strip from Flamingo Road to Tropicana Street.

Water stood 10 feet deep in some low-lying underpasses and parking lots and from the air streets resembled a canal system after Thursday's brief storm spilled 2½ inches of rain.

At Caesars Palace one of the largest Strip resorts, about 100 cars in a parking lot were submerged in 10-foot waters.

"Caesars is a mess," said a hotel desk employee at the spa. "The cars are standing on top of each other, the valet parking lot is really bad. Police are working to clear the mud away and trying to guide traffic around the Strip."

But Ed Suci, a pit boss at the Marina hotel on the Strip, said the weekend still promised to find all hotels booked and gaming tables jammed with customers unless more flooding occurred.

Former world champion grand prix auto racer Stirling Moss, vacationing here from England, waded through waist-deep water to rescue three persons stranded in their cars by the flooding at Caesars.

"It was no big drama or anything," he said. "I saw the water rushing around the car and waded out to open the door for them."

"I thought people were exaggerating when they said all those cars were flooded," said Evelyn Kozma of Phoenix, Ariz. "I was amazed. I just couldn't believe it. But the flood wouldn't keep us away, we love Las Vegas."

Tom Diskin, spokesman for Caesars, said, "It looked like a river out there about 6 p.m. The water was picking up cars like they were toys."

Diskin said about 15 insurance firms had set up quarters inside the hotel to process claims for damaged cars.

It's A Boy

A newly born giraffe crashes down on its head Friday at the Brookfield Zoo near Chicago. The mother is Sandra, age 9. Her 150-pound baby boy was named Nelson in honor of senior zookeeper Meryle Nelson.

Mama giraffe was in labor for 2 hours and 40 minutes as the public watched. Less than an hour after he entered the world, Nelson was up and around.

Creighton Permits Counselor To Stay

Omaha (UPI) — Creighton University said Friday night a psychologist who testified during an obscenity trial last month will be retained by the university.

The Rev. Michael P. Sheridan, Creighton's vice president for student personnel, said the future status of Dr. Charlene G. Erskine was questioned following a news account of testimony she delivered in the trial of American Theater Corp. Prosecutor Questions Future Position

Omaha city prosecutor Gary Buccino, who handled the prosecution of the Pussy Cat Theater, was among those who publicly questioned whether Dr. Erskine should remain with Creighton University.

During the trial, Dr. Erskine testified that she sometimes used sexually-orientated literature as one of the means of treating those who came to her voluntarily.

Testimony Examined Father Sheridan said he made the decision to retain the counseling psychologist following "careful examination of the testimony and subsequent discussion with Dr. Erskine."

"The news accounts were somewhat misleading in that they omitted many of the answers that qualified her testimony," Father Sheridan said. "I am convinced that Dr. Erskine is a psychologist with the highest professional standards that are compatible with Creighton University principles and Catholic morality."

Dr. Erskine, who has been at Creighton since last August, said the counseling and psychotherapy offered by her at the university's counseling center "conforms with the university's moral position on human sexuality."

No Conflict Seen "I am aware of the continuing teaching of Catholicism regarding human sexuality," Dr. Erskine said, "and my psychotherapeutic practices don't conflict with these teachings."

Dr. Erskine, a practicing counselor for five years, earned her doctorate in counseling psychology from the University of Iowa and is a licensed psychologist in Nebraska and Iowa.

A jury hearing the trial in which Dr. Erskine testified found the American Theater Corp. guilty of several counts of obscenity for showing x-rated films at the Pussy Cat Theater in Omaha.

AIM Prayer Ceremony Is Held At Mt. Rushmore

MT. RUSHMORE, S.D. (AP) — Approximately 200 American Indian Movement members and supporters, saying white America has one more year to redeem its treatment of native Americans, staged a peaceful prayer ceremony and rally at the Mt. Rushmore national memorial.

The rally, which took place under a blistering sun amid tightened security precautions, initiated what AIM leaders called a national year of mourning for Indians killed by agents of the federal government.

AIM leader Dennis Banks told the crowd: "For 199 years we've been on trial. For 199 years we've been found guilty. The next 200 years will not be like the last 200."

"All this year the United States of America will be on trial by Indian people. How white America handles Indian people in the next year will determine its punishment..."

AIM National Director Clyde Bellecourt said the Mt. Rushmore memorial, at which the likenesses of four presidents are portrayed on the mountain, desecrates the Sioux' "Paha Sapa," a traditional holy place to the Sioux.

Bellecourt said, "Today we are gathered in the sacred 'Paha Sapa' to honor the hundreds of chiefs and warriors who gave their lives that we may carry on. We will continue to boycott tourist attractions such as these not only in South Dakota but across the United States for the entire Bicentennial celebration that is coming up."

He added, "When July 4, 1976 comes, unless they honor their treaties and commitments, we will be back up here to blow out the candles on the Bicentennial cake."

The crowd was composed mainly of Indians, although a few whites joined the procession from Keystone, S.D., to the monument site, a walk of about four miles up a winding mountain road.

The Park Service and AIM leaders reached an agreement Wednesday allowing the demonstration. That agreement set down several provisions that the marchers had to meet.

Famous Uncle Is Fourth Of July Visitor

"Uncle Sam" (Robert Lindahl of Omaha) made the rounds at the Nebraska Methodist Hospital Friday. Among the new babies who received a copy of the Declaration of Independence and a Fourth of July kiss from their famous uncle was Candace Alf, daughter of Bette Alf of Griswold, Iowa.

Square D, Employees Reach Early Accord

Lincoln's Square D manufacturing plant and Local 2366 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers have begun a new three-year contract, although their former contract didn't expire until December.

Union and company officials had agreed not to reveal contract contents, according to a Square D spokesman asking to remain unidentified. But a Wall Street source close to negotiations said the contract's first year included a 15-cent maximum cost of living increase, a company-wide 40-cent an hour general wage hike and fringe benefits of 14 cents.

The new contract will run from July 1, 1975 to Oct. 1, 1978.

The site of several strikes the past three years, the local plant, a major circuit breakers supplier, has maintained a policy of withholding figures on plant dollar volume and employee information.

Swiss Gets 10 Years Moscow (UPI) — The Supreme Court of the Russian Federation confirmed a 10-year prison sentence for bribery passed on a Swiss businessman, Walter Haefflin.

Motorcyclist Is Badly Hurt

A 25-year-old Lincoln man was critically injured early Friday morning when his motorcycle hit a mailbox at 511 Eldora Lane, police said.

Gary P. Valverde, of 626 East-borough, was listed in critical condition at St. Elizabeth's Community Health Center Friday night with a broken neck. A passenger on the motorcycle, Randy S. Lewien, 18, of 8240 N. Hazelwood, was admitted for observation.

Police said Valverde was southbound on Eldora Lane between Joyce and 70th when his motorcycle left the road and hit the mailbox at 5:58 a.m.

Police ticketed Valverde for driving while intoxicated.

More Rain Forecast In Red River Valley

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — Rain-swollen rivers in the flood-stricken Red River Valley continued to overflow their banks Friday but showed signs of stabilizing, officials said.

However, the National Weather Service forecast a chance of thunderstorms through Saturday in eastern North Dakota area where more than a million acres of fertile farm land lay under water.

Damage from four days of heavy rains last week in North Dakota and Minnesota is estimated at $1.6 billion.

Valley farmers have reported 50 to 100 per cent losses to crops of wheat, barley, flax, soybeans, potatoes, sugarbeets and sunflowers.

The Red, which splits North Dakota from Minnesota, began to stabilize upstream Friday. The National Weather Service said it was holding steady at 33.1 feet at Fargo where flood stage is 17 feet.

Meanwhile, downstream on the Red River crests were yet to come.

For example, Halstad, Minn., was waiting for a record crest of 38.5 feet Saturday, and Grand Forks, where the flood level is 28 feet, was expecting a 42-43 foot crest by Tuesday.

The floods were brought on by four days of torrential downpours which began June 28. Some areas received 13 inches of rain.

Lincoln Schools Get Instruments

Lincoln Public Schools have received $1,000 worth of used musical instruments, the result of a collection drive sponsored by the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce's Forward Lincoln Committee.

The instruments will be loaned to students who can't afford to buy or rent instruments, and thus would not be able to participate in school music programs.

Lincolnites Win United Church Elected Posts

Two Lincoln residents have been elected to committees within the United Church of Christ, at the biennial meeting in Minneapolis of the denomination's tenth general synod.

The Rev. Otis E. Young was elected to the church's nominating committee, which selects candidates for the national offices and boards of national agencies in the church. Sandra Rooney is a new member of the stewardship council, which advocates principles of Christian stewardship and raises church funds.

'Kidnaped' Iowans Enjoy Seward 4th

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Seward — The Harold Lincoln family of West Burlington, Iowa, had gone through trailer trouble on the way to the Black Hills and tire trouble in Rapid City. The last thing they wanted on the way home from their vacation was to be kidnaped.

That's just what happened. But before the day was over they changed their minds and, like Patty Hearst, decided they liked it a lot.

The Lincolns became the annual kidnaped tourist family for July 4th festivities in Seward, Nebraska's "Bicentennial Fourth of July City."

It didn't take any indoctrination for Seward Jaycees President Dennis Erks and his wife Connie to make lifelong Seward fans of Harold and Mary Ann Lincoln and their five kids, Randy, 15, Tammy, "almost" 12, Ronnie, 9, Timmie, 6, and Lori, 4.

All it took was ringside seats at Gov. and Mrs. J. James Exon's dedication of Harold Davisson's "world's largest time capsule," free meals and lodging, a VIP tour of the town, a ride in the Independence Day parade, homemade ice cream at an old-fashioned ice cream social, a grandstand show and fireworks display, and a lot of unexpected attention.

"This is really something great," said Mrs. Lincoln. "They just won't believe this back home. Would you send us a copy of the story so we can prove it to 'em'?"

"What now?" Lincoln recalled having thought when the State Patrol car, red lights flashing, pulled the family over on I-80 at 8:15 a.m. Friday morning. After a trip plagued with difficulties, a ticket would have been icing on the cake.

But when State Trooper David Winkler explained his purpose, the Lincolns agreed it might be kind of fun to spend a day as special guests in Seward. They'd included an extra day for the unexpected in their schedule anyway. Mrs. Lincoln didn't have to resume work at Midwest Biscuit Co. in West Burlington till Monday morning, and her husband didn't have to return to his factory job at Lehigh Leopold Office Furniture till Tuesday.

How about that time capsule? "It was different," said Lincoln, shaking his head. The family had hardly finished viewing the dedication, however, when their black poodle, Snoopy, got frightened, broke his chain and ran away.

The Lincolns, several Jaycees and some local gendarmes took up the search and found Snoopy exploring the Concordia Teachers College campus a few blocks away.

Spring, Fall Best Seasons For Active Turfgrass Care

As summer approaches with daily temperatures shooting past 90 degrees and night temperatures hovering around 70 degrees, the quality and performance of most turf in Nebraska begins to decline, the University of Nebraska Agriculture College reports.

Most home lawns are cool-season turfgrasses such as Kentucky bluegrass, which prefers soil temperatures between 60-70 degrees for optimum shoot growth. So as the daily temperatures climb into the 80's and beyond, a natural decline or high temperature growth stoppage is experienced by these species.

A few specific management practices can enhance turfgrass growing conditions during hot months; however, the best rule of thumb is to practice restraint, the Ag College says. Most of the management needed should be done in the spring and fall. Kentucky bluegrasses should not be over-fertilized from late June to mid-August. Excessive fertilization now increases the grass plants' susceptibility to high temperature injury and drought stress. If fertilization is necessary during warm months, use only light applications that aid in color retention but do not stimulate excessive growth. Iron can be used to supplement nitrogen for improved turfgrass color.

Kentucky bluegrass generally performs best at a mowing height of 1.5-2.0 inches, during spring and fall growing periods. In early- to mid-June, this mowing height should be raised to 2.0-2.5 inches. This added height will help insulate the growing point of the turfgrass which is located near the soil surface. In late August, the mowing should again be returned to 1.5-2.0 inches.

The mowing frequency is dictated by the growth rate of the turfgrass. As a rule, no more than one-third of top growth should be removed with any mowing. An adequate mowing frequency will stimulate the turf to maintain good density and will give the lawn a well-manicured appearance.

About 1-2 inches of water per week (rainfall plus irrigation) is usually required to maintain adequate turfgrass performance during the hot summer months. Water the lawn deeply and infrequently to stimulate a deep root system, the Ag College says.

Most weed, disease and insect control should be done before summer. Broadleaved weeds such as dandelion and white clover are best controlled in the spring and/or fall. Warm-season summer annual grasses such as crabgrass are best controlled with a pre-emergence herbicide applied in the early spring. Diseases such as leaf spot are also best controlled in the spring.

Insect problems such as sod webworm present a slightly different situation. Sod webworms are best controlled by spraying in mid-June through August.

The best summer maintenance program is a good offense in the spring and fall when growing conditions are best suited to the cool-season turfgrasses such as Kentucky bluegrass, the experts report.

Luedtke Says Legislature Proper Place For Reforms

State Sen. Roland A. Luedtke of Lincoln opposes a proposed referendum on a comprehensive Nebraska political reform package and contends the Legislature ought to be given time to do it.

proposed reform package called for disclosure of lobbying activities, limits on amounts that may be contributed to political candidates, disclosure of financial holdings of public officials and an independent ethics commission to receive and audit all disclosure statements.

Luedtke said the coalition appeared to be "talking about fears rather than actual case histories of Watergate-type activities. I'd like to know what they're talking about."

He said the Legislature has not been given enough time to "work these things out. They are not laws that can be passed overnight."

Luedtke said, "I'd like to see what other states are doing with them for a while too, because some states are having extreme difficulties with laws that Common Cause has proposed."

Judge Extends Meat Packers' Filing Deadline

Omaha (AP) — Federal Bankruptcy Court Judge David Crawford has granted American Beef Packers, Inc., an extension until July 23 to file an amended plan for payment of creditors.

The deadline had been set for Monday but negotiations between the packing firm and the court-appointed creditors committee haven't been completed on the terms of the plan.

American Beef filed a Chapter 11 bankruptcy action in Omaha on Jan. 7.

The creditors committee is composed primarily of livestock feeders who were issued rubber checks for slaughter animals. The committee refused an earlier payment plan proposed by American Beef in March.

Ananda Marga Troubled By Political Arrests In India

Recent political arrests in India are troubling a small group here in Lincoln.

The Ananda Marga, an international spiritual organization, which has denounced the recent repression of political opponents of Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, has about a dozen members in Lincoln.

Bob Venezia of New York, national representative of the Ananda Marga, is in Lincoln this week for a conference. He says that democracy in Indian has been virtually nonexistent since Mrs. Gandhi took office in 1967.

Government corruption and persecution of anti-communist activists followed on the heels of Mrs. Gandhi's election eight years ago, Venezia said, when she enlisted the help of India's Communist Party to secure her position.

During that year, five members of the organization were killed, he said.

Among those imprisoned is Shrii Shrii Anandamurti, who founded Ananda Marga in India in 1954. Anandamurti was arrested in 1971, and accused of conspiracy to commit homicide in connection with the deaths of former members of Ananda Marga.

The prisoner has been fasting — living only on liquids — for 820 days since an attempt to poison him was made on Feb. 12, 1973.

"It is hard to say what will happen in India with their (the government's) sense of justice," Venezia said. "Since Mrs. Gandhi has been asked to resign because of her conviction of corrupt campaign tactics, they have arrested 900 people, according to some reports. Others say the number could be as high as 3,500. None of the arrests can be appealed."

Venezia said that Ananda Marga's basic tenets are self-realization through spiritual practices and service to humanity.

Ananda Marga's efforts currently are concentrated on the situation in India, Venezia said. "We place a very strong emphasis on morality in government, so any government that would be exploitive or corrupt, we would be interested in reforming."

Venezia estimated that there are anywhere from 5,000 to 10,000 active members of Ananda Marga in the United States.

County-Wide Law Enforcement Sought

Alma — Village boards at Ragan, Huntley and Republican City plan to inform the Harlan County Board of Supervisors they desire to enter into a county-wide enforcement program with personnel from the villages serving as deputy sheriffs of Harlan County. City officials at Alma and Orleans will consider the matter further before making a decision on the plan. The village of Stamford has decided not to enter the program at this time.

Stir-Up Plans At Ashland Told

Ashland — This community's 37th annual Stir-Up celebration is planned for July 18-20, according to Leslie Blobaum, chairman of the 1975 event. Festivities scheduled will include a horse and livestock showing and judging, children's parade, pee-wee baseball tournament, 27th Stir-Up coronation, Girl Scouts breakfast, horseshoe tournament, firemen's water fight and street carnival.

Kenesaw Youth Gets $500 Grant

Bradley C. Augustin, 1975 Kenesaw High School graduate, received the Ward C. Memorial scholarship worth $500 to attend the University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Agriculture this fall. The 18-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Augustin of Kenesaw, he is planning to major in agricultural mechanization at NU. In high school he was a four-year honor roll student and class president.

Jeffers To Manage Crete Plant

Crete — James A. Jeffers of Austin, Minn., has been named manager of the new Farmland Food, Inc. pork processing plant at Crete. He comes to Crete from Madison where he has served as plant superintendent of the Madison Foods Pork Plant. Charles P. Beno, a native of Council Bluffs, Iowa, will serve as superintendent of the Crete plant. Meanwhile, open house and dedication of the Crete plant is tentatively scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 24.

Courthouse Area Tabbed For Registry

Tecumseh — The Johnson County Courthouse area in Tecumseh has been entered in the National Registry of Historical Places, according to Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb. The Tecumseh Historical District will include eight structures in the courthouse area. Thone said designation by the National Parks Service will make it possible for these buildings to be considered for federal grants for restoration.

2 Men Serving Life Sentences Seek Parole

Two men serving life at the Nebraska Penal Complex are among 21 cases set for hearing by the Board of Parole in July.

Jerry Erving Sr., 55, Omaha, will be considered July 16 for a recommendation that the State Pardon Board commute his sentence to a definite number of years, making him eligible for future parole.

He was convicted of first degree murder in the 1959 deaths of Omahans Floyd Ellis and Dorothy Elliott. Two other men were found guilty in the same case.

Also on July 16, the Parole Board will consider another Omahan, Max Kniffen, 41, for immediate parole.

Kniffen is serving concurrent life terms for two counts of kidnapping from Dodge County, plus a consecutive five-year sentence from Lancaster County for rape and robbery. The sentences were all imposed in 1962.

Charges in both counties stemmed from similar incidents in which Kniffen stopped a couple, forced the man into the trunk of a car and raped the woman.

Other cases set for parole hearings:

Nebraska Center for Women, to be heard July at York —

Susie Stewart, 32, Scottsbluff, serving 5-8 years for assault with intent to inflict great bodily injury, sentenced from Scotts Bluff County, December, 1970.

Work Release cases from Sidney, Omaha, and Lincoln, to be heard at the penitentiary July 16 —

James E. Patterson, 22, N. C., 2 years for forgery, from Saunders County, May, 1974.

Vastine Erving, 22, Omaha, 2

Lancaster County Wheat Harvest Underway

The wheat harvest has spread to Lancaster County, which had the third highest wheat production in Nebraska last year.

Cyril Bish, a county Extension agent, said several farmers in the county were in full swing this week, and "it looks like we're going to have about 60,000 acres of what to harvest in Lancaster County."

He estimated the yield to be 35-40 bushels per acre and the test weight at about 60 pounds, which, he said, was "very normal." He said the farmers want to complete most of the harvesting before the weather changes to rain.

The per acre yield in Lancaster County last year was 42.5 bushels for a total production of 2.8 million bushels, the third highest in the state. Bish said the yield per acre may be less this year, but farmers planted more acres to wheat because of drought conditions last year and total wheat production was expected to equal last year's output.

He also said the quality of this year's wheat "is going to be excellent."

The first harvesting of wheat this year was in southwest Nebraska, with harvesting also underway in northern Kansas.

Omaha Ordinance Drawn Up To Shut Off Illegal Gun Trade

Omaha (AP) — A committee of the Omaha City Council has reached tentative agreement on a proposed gun ordinance designed to help close off outlets for the sale of stolen firearms.

Much of the committee's discussion concerned the method of revoking licenses of secondhand gun dealers. The original draft by City Prosecutor Gary Buchino said any violation of the ordinance, or conviction of any felony or misdemeanor, would result in revocation of the license by the public safety director.

Councilman Monte Taylor said the revocation shouldn't be automatic simply because a person committed a misdemeanor unrelated to the license.

The committee decided to have the safety director suspend the license for misdemeanor or felony convictions, but for the City Council to hold a hearing on the matter. The council would decide whether mitigating circumstances would permit a person convicted of a misdemeanor to retain his license. The council will reconsider the ordinance July 22.

Buchino says the proposed ordinance would allow police to recover more stolen firearms. The dealers would be required to submit daily reports of transactions to police and keep their books ready for inspection.

Officials say guns frequently are stolen in burglaries.

problems and bids on construction of the compactor were not approved until May 28, ruling out completion of construction by the Aug. 1 deadline.

City officials must show cause why the facility should not be closed before the state will lift the ban on dumping at the site south of Columbus.

Construction began last month on a trash compactor, which is to be completed by Dec. 1. State environmentalists told the city in 1973 that the landfill operation would not be relicensed because of groundwater problems.

Work was started on the compactor in 1973, but a change in city engineers caused planning

Memorial Lodge Ground Broken

Sidney (UPI) — Ground-breaking ceremonies were held here Friday for the $40,000 Monica McNish Memorial Lodge on the grounds of the Lodgepole Valley 4-H youth camp.

Mayor Ed Haupt and Ed Narjes, representing the Cheyenne County supervisors, turned over the first spadefuls of dirt for the new building that will feature a kitchen and combination dining and recreation hall.

The city of Sidney and the county commissioners each pledged $15,000 to finance construction, with the camp's board of directors to raise $15,000.

Omaha Man Says Dogs Killed Birds

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha man who contends that more than $13,000 worth of "exotic and migratory waterfowl" were killed in his yard has filed suit in District Court against the owner of two dogs he says feasted on the birds.

Donald Harper said in his suit that Natario Zenojias turned two German Shepherd dogs loose near Harper's yard on April 19.

The dogs were described in the suit as being of a vicious nature. The suit alleges they climbed over a fence and destroyed the better part of a menagerie consisting of live geese, swans and hens.

Attorney Carl Klekers, representing Harper, said his client started raising the birds as a hobby, but that he planned to sell them for profit.

Klekers said Harper's yard is properly fenced and divided into pens and that he has the necessary licenses to raise the birds.

Rules Out Hike

Des Moines (AP) — In a major opinion, Iowa Atty. Gen. Richard Turner ruled that retroactive pay raises for about 300 legislative employees are unconstitutional.

Miller, charging the state with failure to control its musk thistle problem, took work crews into the area on three days last week and cut thistles because neighbors were complaining of scattering seed, he said.

He didn't use the normal procedure of giving advance notice, he said, because the seed dispersion was creating an emergency.

"Since you recently assumed your position," McClain wrote Miller, "I am sure you are not aware of our efforts to control musk thistles by biological means."

McClain said a species of beetle — which consumes thistle seed heads in the course of its reproductive cycle had been released below the west dam at Twin Lakes, where a single

Thistle Raid Kills Researchers' Plot

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Pleasant Dale — A county weed superintendent's emergency musk thistle raid at Twin Lakes last week inadvertently destroyed a thistle control research plot, according to the state Game and Parks Commission.

The mistake was called to the attention of Seward County Weed District Supt. Lonnie Miller in a July 1 letter signed by Chester McClain in behalf of Game and Parks Commission Director Willard Barbee.

McClain, field supervisor in the commission's resource services division, oversees personnel who manage the Twin Lakes area.

Miller, charging the state with failure to control its musk thistle problem, took work crews into the area on three days last week and cut thistles because neighbors were complaining of scattering seed, he said.

He didn't use the normal procedure of giving advance notice, he said, because the seed dispersion was creating an emergency.

McClain said a species of beetle — which consumes thistle seed heads in the course of its reproductive cycle had been released below the west dam at Twin Lakes, where a single patch of thistles had been allowed to remain.

The research project, he said, is under the direction of Dr. Melvin McCarty, research agronomist for the United States Department of Agriculture.

Imported from Europe, Montana and Saskatchewan, the beetles are the musk thistle's natural enemy and keep thistle populations under biological control in their native European habitat.

The beetles involved in the three-year old research plot at Twin Lakes have lost their food source with removal of the thistles, McClain said, and are not expected to survive. If any do, the project will be resumed next year, he said.

McClain also countered Miller's charge of laxity on the part of the commission, pointing out that $5,000 is spent each year for thistle control in the Salt Valley Lakes alone. "Our field crews have been doing a good job of removing the scattered thistles on Twin Lakes," he said.

"Our whole problem appears to be a lack of communications," McClain wrote. "Phone calls, letters and personal contact can go a long way in solving our problems."

Miller's notice, he said, was not dated until June 27th, and was received the 25th. "By this time," he said, "the thistles had been removed, and we were not able to respond."

Better Check— Your 'Flowers' May Really Be Pretty Weeds

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

Some backyards are in full bloom with lovely purple musk thistle, golden yellow sunflowers and the pinkish-white blossoms of the morning glory.

What some owners might not realize is that their colorful wildflower patch is, in reality, a weed bed.

As a local comic page character recently commented: "Some weeds try to fool you by having flowers."

While those who know may not care, it's a sure bet their neighbors probably do. But one man's weed can be another man's flower.

Basically, a weed is a plant that is growing out of place.

A petunia in a potato patch can be a weed, unless it was purposely planted there. Similarly, a corn stalk in a soybean field is as much an unwanted plant as a dandelion in a bluegrass lawn.

Weeds Attacked

While many weeds evade exact identification by home gardeners, bluegrass lawn growers have no trouble spotting the invaders. But it's certainly a lot easier to attack coarse crabgrass than it is to destroy the yellow flowers of the black medic.

Most cultivated flowers we have now originated from weeds, says Lancaster County extension agent Emery Nelson. But he fears that weeds now have become too closely associated with social status.

For example, Nelson thinks that dandelions on lawns are not that unattractive, but somewhere along the way people "didn't have the right station in their neighborhood if they had dandelions in their lawns."

He personally had nothing against dandelions until "we dug them up for a few days as kids, and then we hated them."

We're caught up in what Nelson terms a "bluegrass culture." This weed expert thinks lawn-growers — more so in Lincoln than in other areas — have gone overboard with their uniform blades of grass. Even white clover becomes unacceptable to some people.

"It's not just to satisfy ourselves," Nelson contends. It's become a cultural thing. But Nelson doesn't deny the enjoyment and exercise people gain from working in their yards.

Garden Full

In his own backyard this horticulturist has a garden full of weeds which he calls his "flower" garden. Some of this special greenery has even found its way into Nelson's stewpot.

"Stinging nettles and lambsquarters are delicious. Dandelion wine isn't bad at all, either," he said.

Nelson says some 200 weeds are real common in local lawns and gardens. Some are conspicuous by their pretty blooms while others are camouflaged low to the ground, where they can do plenty of damage suffocating desirable growth.

But beauty can also be the beast in the weed world. Nelson says that field bindweed (a form of morning glory) with its pretty blossom is one of the best ground covers, but one of the worst weeds in the state because it strangles crops.

Weeds in agricultural Nebraska can have an economic impact as well as a social one. Farmers must control the predators before they encroach on the crops. Annually, weeds cause the biggest loss to crops in this state.

But weeds can be an emotionally-charged issue as well as a real economic threat.

Some Outlawed

Several years ago there was a big campaign against the musk thistle, a spiny growth with large deep rose or violet powder-puff flowers. It was subsequently named to the list of prohibited noxious weeds outlawed in the state by the Legislature.

Other forbidden weeds are: the plumeless, Canada and Scotch thistles, field bindweed, tall morning glory, Johnson grass, leafy spurge, hoary cress, skeleton and woolly leaf bursage, puncture vine and Russian knapweed.

A list of restricted noxious weeds has also been drawn up by the Legislature. These include dock, wild mustard, quackgrass, pennycress, dodder and horse nettle.

Getting rid of weeds has become a big business. It seems there's a different killer for almost every kind of weed.

Nelson divided the chemical eradicators into two basic categories — pre-emergents and post-emergents.

Pre-emergents are applied in the spring to prevent the seeds of annual plants from growing. The time to use post-emergents is after the weeds have come up.

But if post-emergents are not applied properly and with discretion Nelson warns that the powerful sprays "could damage ornamental plants and get to the neighbor's tomatoes, too."

For those who wrinkle their noses at chemical deterrents, old-fashioned digging will still get the job done.

She Should Decide How Much She'll Reveal

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old wife and mother of two. I am a good-looking girl with a nice figure. My problem is my husband. He wants me to wear sexy clothes to show off what I've got. He buys most of my clothes, which are all midriffs, tight, clingy sweaters, low-cut necks, very mini skirts and tight hip-huggers.

When I say I want to take something back because it is too revealing, he has a fit.

We had a big fight about his wanting me to go bra-less. I just don't like that look, but he says HE likes it and I should dress to please him.

I try to tell him that it gives other guys the impression that I am on the make, but he says if I set them straight, they will leave me alone.

I hate to displease him, but it's getting so we fight about this more and more.

Am I wrong? Or is he? And how do I handle it?

WANTS TO BE ME

DEAR WANTS: He's wrong. And you can handle it by telling him that you will dress to please him in the privacy of your home, but you absolutely refuse to show more in public than YOU consider good taste. And stick to your guns. He is wrong, wrong, wrong!

DEAR ABBY: I am dating a very nice widower. He's taken me to dinner and the movies, but none of my friends or family have met him.

There is going to be a big wedding in my family, and I want him to escort me. His wife died three years ago, and he hasn't dated much, so he is still wearing his wedding band. He is raising three teenagers, which is probably why he hasn't taken his wedding band off yet.

I'd like him to remove his wedding band when he escorts me, but I don't know how to approach him about it. I don't want my friends and family to think that I am dating a married man or that I am secretly married to him.

I considered buying him a large, inexpensive ring to hide the band for the night in case he can't get it off. Any suggestions?

PARENT WITHOUT PARTNER

DEAR PARENT: Don't ask him to remove his wedding band. And don't ask him to "hide" it. When conversing with family and friends, you can subtly let them know that he is a widower.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Let's assume you're in six spades and West leads a heart. It is dollars to doughnuts that East has the ace, so you play low from dummy and East wins with the queen.

East returns a trump and you see that the slam will fail unless you are able to establish a heart trick in dummy to take care of your diamond loser.

In line with this, you draw three rounds of trumps, ruff the

It may appear that East can stop the slam by playing the nine of hearts at trick one instead of the queen, but actually you can still make the contract — though in an entirely different way. You simply play five rounds of trumps and the A-K-Q of clubs, producing this position:

Better-Educated Said Sleepier When Driving

Durham, N.C. (UPI) — According to a National Driving Center survey, a person with a Masters degree is 28 times more likely to fall asleep at the wheel of an automobile than a person with only a grade school education.

Honesty in answering the survey questions and the boredom associated with driving are two possible explanations for results of the survey by Duke University psychiatrist William Erwin.

But in a recent interview, Erwin said preliminary indications are that the survey results are supported by investigations of accidents in which sleeping drivers were involved.

The National Safety Council estimates between 15 and 30% of all fatalities on interstate highways involve sleeping drivers.

To find out why drivers become drowsy, Erwin recently spent two months at highway patrol licensing stations polling 1,500 drivers.

7% of the drivers admitted falling asleep at the wheel. The survey indicated the incidence of drowsiness was higher among men, younger persons, and more educated persons.

A scant 3.2% of drivers with grade school educations said they sometimes become drowsy driving, while 84.9% of those with post graduate degrees said they had experienced drowsiness behind the wheel.

The rate was 42.6% for those with a junior high school education, 59.8% for those who completed high school and 77.8% for those with college degrees.

"The less educated you are, the less honest you are in responding to questions," Erwin offered as one reason for the survey results.

Crib Death May Be Caused By Metals Fetus Receives

By The Associated Press
Newark, N.J. — Harmful quantities of lead and cadmium passed from pregnant women to their children may be the cause of some cases of sudden infant death, a researcher said.

Dr. Richard J. Coumbis, a forensic scientist in the New Jersey Medical Ex aminer's office and an associate professor of preventive medicine at the New Jersey College of Medicine and Dentistry, leads a team which has investigated more than 80 cases of crib death and stillborn children in the last year.

Coumbis said Wednesday that lead and cadmium levels in the brains, livers and kidneys of some 10 to 20 of the infants "approached toxic levels."

He said accumulations of the elements in the body of the mother could be passed to the fetus — a sort of "maternal pollution" endangering the child before it is born.

He said that could lead to stillbirth or sudden infant death. Sudden infant death syndrome, also called crib death, is the name given to deaths of newborns for no apparent reason.

"We're not saying that we have solved the mystery," Coumbis said, "but we feel we have uncovered enough evidence to warrant a continued search for scientific, down-to-earth answers to what has been held by some to be almost metaphysical occurrences."

Coumbis and his team are researching levels of 40 trace elements in the bodies of crib death victims. Reports on other elements besides lead and cadmium are still to come, he said.

He said most of the detailed studies were performed on victims from inner cities, "where there is a tendency to chronic exposure to poisonous chemicals."

He said recent advances in techniques for analysis of body tissues made it possible to detect minute quantities of possibly lethal elements passed to the fetus by the mother.

Many crib deaths may not have been explained because previous techniques were not good enough, he said.

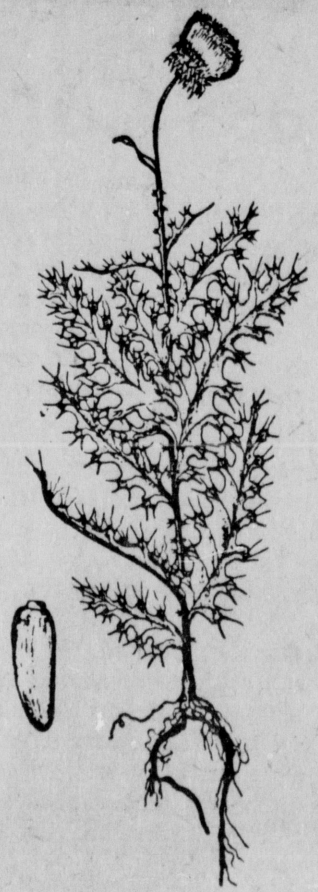

Lead poisoning affects the brain, liver and kidney and has been established as a cause of retardation and death. Coumbis added that poisonous quantities of lead were found in body tissue even though levels in the blood were not very high, suggesting that "it is still questionable what is normal."

Less is known about the effect of cadmium, Coumbis said, but when fed to pregnant rats, it has caused placenta damage and abortion. He said cadmium can chemically replace other elements in body enzymes, with an unknown effect. "But the fact that this is possible is a reason for concern," he said.

Lead and cadmium come from old paint, automobile exhaust, food and water, the researchers said.

Omaha Judge Investigates Alleged Neglect Of Horses

Omaha (AP) — Municipal Court Judge Francis McLane is investigating alleged neglect of 21 horses.

Charles Bahr, 78, of Omaha, has been charged with abusing, starving or overworking animals on his property.

Judge McLane delayed making judgment until he could visit the Bahr property with a veterinarian to look at the horses.

The charge against Bahr was brought after the Nebraska Humane Society filed a complaint with the city prosecutor's office.

The society's executive director, Mrs. Bettie Phelps, said the society has received complaints about Bahr for several years. She said Bahr has about eight acres of land, but that he doesn't have electricity or running water and must hand pump water for the animals.

Mrs. Phelps said, "Lately, we've been getting weekly complaints, especially from neighbors, who say the horses are poorly fed and need veterinary care."

She said this is the first time formal action has been taken against Bahr.

"We used to help him repair his fences whenever one of the horses got out, but the situation has just gotten worse. We can see that the horses are not getting enough to eat," said Mrs. Phelps.

Bahr pleaded innocent and had a defender in court.

A 12-year-old boy took the stand on Bahr's part, testifying that Bahr "was a nice old man who wouldn't hurt anyone and wouldn't hurt horses and only wanted to live out his life with his horses because they were the only family he had."

Omaha Hospital Leasing Device To Scan Brain

Omaha (AP) — Clarkson Hospital is leasing a device to help diagnose brain disorders.

The EMI scanner will serve Nebraska and parts of several neighboring states. The scanner, first in the state, has been called one of the biggest advances in radiology since discovery of the X-ray in 1895.

The machine rents for about $8,000 per month. The British EMI firm sells it for $381,500.

The scanner is said to have an advantage over X-rays because it presents a composite picture. The scans help locate and size brain tumors, tell if there is swelling in surrounding tissue and give clues to the type of tumor present.

Fireworks Hurt Young Omahan

Believing and teaching the Bible as the actual word of God!

"WHY DO THE HEATHEN RAGE?"

2nd Psalm and Acts 4:25.

To date about 694 articles have been offered for publication in this column. Several were rejected — think the total number rejected less than a half dozen (6). The following are excerpts from the January 18th, 1965, rejected article. From the standpoint of rhetoric and grammar, doubtless the 694 articles need much correction, but our testimony is that they are Biblically Faithful.

The late George Stewart, a prominent Evangelist of the past generation, told this story about those who attack the Bible and those who fear the Bible might be destroyed: The biggest fool he ever heard of was a man who took a crowbar and went out to overturn Lookout Mountain. But he found a bigger fool than that when he went on the other side of the mountain and found a fellow with his shoulder against the mountain to keep it from being overturned! The true Christian to whom The Spirit of God has revealed the truth of The Bible, in seeking to defend the Bible is not concerned about it being overturned or destroyed, but rather is greatly concerned about the unbelief caused by the wretches' attack on The Bible. Unbelief does not make The Word of God without effect, but fulfills it in producing Eternal Death to those who reject it!

Jesus said, "VERILY, VERILY, I SAY UNTO YOU, THE HOUR IS COMING, AND NOW IS, WHEN THE DEAD SHALL HEAR THE VOICE OF THE SON OF GOD: AND THEY THAT HEAR SHALL LIVE — MARVEL NOT AT THIS: FOR THE HOUR IS COMING, IN WHICH ALL THAT ARE IN THE GRAVES SHALL HEAR HIS VOICE, AND SHALL COME FORTH: THEY THAT HAVE DONE GOOD, UNTO THE RESURRECTION OF LIFE: AND THEY THAT HAVE DONE EVIL, UNTO THE RESURRECTION OF DAMNATION." John 5:25 etc.

Hear these words of God, and judge whether any apply to you: "For if we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged." 1st Cor. 11:31.

Jesus spoke these words to Peter when Peter spoke against Jesus' prophecy of His death on the cross, "Get thee behind me, Satan, for thou art an offense unto me; for thou savorest not of the things that be of God, but those that be of men!" — Matthew 16:23.

Paul, the Apostle, said this to the false prophet, "O FULL OF ALL SUBTILITY AND ALL MISCHIEF, THOU CHILD OF THE DEVIL, THOU ENEMY OF ALL RIGHTEOUSNESS, WILT THOU NOT CEASE TO PERVERT THE RIGHT WAYS OF THE LORD!" — Acts 13:10.

The apostle Peter rebuked the man who sought to buy the gift of The Holy Spirit with these words, "THOU HAST NEITHER PART NOR LOT IN THIS MATTER: FOR THY HEART IS NOT RIGHT IN THE SIGHT OF GOD. REPENT THEREFORE OF THIS THY WICKEDNESS, AND PRAY GOD, IF PERHAPS THE THOUGHT OF THINE HEART MAY BE FORGIVEN THEE. FOR I PERCEIVE THAT THOU ART IN THE GALL OF BITTERNESS, AND IN THE BOND OF INQUITY!" — Acts 8:21.

Jesus said, "LET THEM ALONE: EVERY PLANT, WHICH MY HEAVENLY FATHER HATH NOT PLANTED, SHALL BE ROOTED UP. THEY BE BLIND LEADERS OF THE BLIND. AND IF THE BLIND LEAD THE BLIND, BOTH SHALL FALL INTO THE DITCH!" — Matthew 15:13,14.

Centuries ago, a heathen king sent this message to King Josiah of Judah: "FORBEAR THEE FROM MEDDLING WITH GOD — THAT HE DESTROY THEE NOT!" — 2nd Chron. 35:21.

THERE'S MORE TO LIFE THAN A PRETTY BALLOON!

A bouncy red or yellow balloon is the symbol the world over of good fun and happy feelings.

There's rarely a festival, a fiesta, or a fair held anywhere without the familiar balloon vendor strolling through the crowd, selling happiness for a few pennies. Parents buy them for their kids and young men present them with a flourish to their girl friends.

Just why a balloon is so much fun isn't clear, but one thing is certain — the pleasure never lasts. The air leaks out, balloons unexpectedly pop, careless fingers send them soaring away forever.

But there is a far greater pleasure to be found that will last for an eternity. It is the happy pursuit of a Christian life and you can find out all about it this Sunday — in church.

John 5:25 etc.

Hear these words of God, and judge whether any apply to you: "For if we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged." 1st Cor. 11:31.

Jesus spoke these words to Peter when Peter spoke against Jesus' prophecy of His death on the cross, "Get thee behind me, Satan, for thou art an offense unto me; for thou savorest not of the things that be of God, but those that be of men!" — Matthew 16:23.

Paul, the Apostle, said this to the false prophet, "O FULL OF ALL SUBTILITY AND ALL MISCHIEF, THOU CHILD OF THE DEVIL, THOU ENEMY OF ALL RIGHTEOUSNESS, WILT THOU NOT CEASE TO PERVERT THE RIGHT WAYS OF THE LORD!" — Acts 13:10.

The apostle Peter rebuked the man who sought to buy the gift of The Holy Spirit with these words, "THOU HAST NEITHER PART NOR LOT IN THIS MATTER: FOR THY HEART IS NOT RIGHT IN THE SIGHT OF GOD. REPENT THEREFORE OF THIS THY WICKEDNESS, AND PRAY GOD, IF PERHAPS THE THOUGHT OF THINE HEART MAY BE FORGIVEN THEE, FOR I PERCEIVE THAT THOU ART IN THE GALL OF BITTERNESS, AND IN THE BOND OF INIQUITY!" — Acts 8:21.

Jesus said, "LET THEM ALONE: EVERY PLANT, WHICH MY HEAVENLY FATHER HATH NOT PLANTED, SHALL BE ROOTED UP. THEY BE BLIND LEADERS OF THE BLIND, AND IF THE BLIND LEAD THE BLIND, BOTH SHALL FALL INTO THE DITCH!" — Matthew 15:13,14.

Centuries ago, a heathen king sent this message to King Josiah of Judah: "FORBEAR THEE FROM MEDDLING WITH GOD — THAT HE DESTROY THEE NOT!" — 2nd Chron. 35:21.

THERE'S MORE TO LIFE THAN A PRETTY BALLOON!

A bouncy red or yellow balloon is the symbol the world over of good fun and happy feelings.

There's rarely a festival, a fiesta, or a fair held anywhere without the familiar balloon vendor strolling through the crowd, selling happiness for a few pennies. Parents buy them for their kids and young men present them with a flourish to their girl friends.

Just why a balloon is so much fun isn't clear, but one thing is certain — the pleasure never lasts. The air leaks out, balloons unexpectedly pop, careless fingers send them soaring away forever.

But there is a far greater pleasure to be found that will last for an eternity. It is the happy pursuit of a Christian life and you can find out all about it this Sunday — in church.

Morehead, Cheeseborough Supply Holiday Fireworks

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Over 6,000 spectators had their eyes focused on Houston McTear, but Brenda Morehead and Chandra Cheeseborough supplied the Fourth of July record-breaking fireworks in the sprints for the Americans as the USA women took a 36-26 lead over the Soviet Union after the first day's competition at the University of Nebraska's Ed Weir track.

meter tape in identical meet record times of :11.4 while the photo showed Morehead the event winner.
Exactly one hour later, the two combined for a circus-style relay exchange in the 440 yard relay to keep from getting disqualified, and raced to the only other women's record set in Friday competition with a :44.8 clocking, four-tenths of a second faster than the previous record.
Running the leadoff leg, Cheeseborough easily made up the inside stagger and then some on the USSR team going into the exchange zone for the handoff to Morehead.

Watching a spot taped on the track, Morehead took off sprinting to receive the baton from Cheeseborough. With her eye on the end of the zone, she didn't have the baton from Cheeseborough and jumped almost straight up in the air to keep from running out of the exchange before making connections.
Her quick thinking tactic worked as she controlled the baton within the exchange limits.
While Cheeseborough and Morehead were working their acrobatics, the Russian team missed its first exchange and dropped the baton leaving Morehead and teammates Evelyn Ashford and Bernadine Givens none but the clock to compete with.

"After Chandra got that lead and Brenda's experience raring her head back to help her make the exchange, Brenda didn't have to run that fast with the lead," said Will Stephens, head women's coach for the US team. "And the exchanges between Brenda and Ashford and Givens were perfect. None of them had to pull like they did to win, but they all ran a tremendous race."
"That's got to be an American record," Stephens added. "Those aren't junior times either, they can run with anybody when they run like that."

Both Morehead and Cheeseborough's time in 100 meters tie Morehead's American record set last week, and neither got off to good starts.
Morehead had a false start the first try and had to hesitate for the second start.
"I couldn't get out fast like I usually do after that false start," she said. "I just had to sit back and wait for the gun."
"I didn't think either one had a very good start," Stephens said. "If Chandra would have gotten out a little better, she might have beaten Brenda since she had to wait for the gun."

Morehead is a 17-year-old headed for Tennessee State to work under Ed Temple, coach of Wilma Rudolph and Wyomia Tyas.
Cheeseborough, a 16-year-old sophomore-to-be in high school at Jacksonville (Fla.) is also hoping to enroll at Tennessee State "when I'm old enough."
Both girls will be trying to make it a record breaking sweep Saturday in the 200 meters, a race Temple predicts will be "just as close as the 100."

Stephens received some unexpected points along with the scoring he expected for the first day's competition. He said the team scored about five more than he had figured.
The Star's first day prediction chart was 3 1/2 points off of the first day total.
Cathy Sulinski of the USA provided a pleasant surprise in the javelin as her 177-1 throw bettered the Soviet Union's Vera Portnova by more than a foot.
The Russians sweep of the discus was the only event the American women didn't win.
Pat Helms raced to a personal best of :53.1 in the 400 meter run leading a 1-2 sweep while Hillary Noden won the women's 1500 meters in 4:26.6.

"Hillary has really been a dream since she showed up here for practice," Stephens said. "She's one of the best working competitors we have here. Those are the type that come through for you when you need it."
Stephens' prediction for Saturday's competition is the USA team plus four, but he's quick to point out that in all the track meets he coached against the Russians, and that's quite a few, they're not the type to quit.

McTear's Heart With Borzov

By RANDY YORK
Houston McTear's legs were in Lincoln Friday, but his heart may well have been in Kiev, Russia, where Olympic champion Valery Borzov ran :10.0 to beat the Americans in the 100-meter dash.

McTear, pending world record-holder in the 100-yard dash, achieved :10.2 in the American-Soviet junior meet at Nebraska's Ed Weir track.

"Yeh, I'd like to run against Borzov," McTear said about a half hour after emerging from a cluster of television and newspaper cameras and radio microphones.

"He can be beat. He's just another sprinter like the rest of us," the 16-year-old McTear said of Borzov. "I always like to be where the best competition is."
For all practical purposes, McTear was unchallenged Friday. He was in complete command before the sprint was half finished.

"My start was all right," McTear said. "Anyway, it was a lot better than it was last week in Bermuda."

McTear could have qualified for the American-Russian senior meet had he participated in qualifying competition at Eugene, Ore

However, there was a dispute over financial arrangements and AAU officials in Eugene didn't send McTear enough money to make the trip. Instead, he qualified for the junior meet in Knoxville, Tenn.
Although he will be eligible for the junior meet again next year, McTear indicated he likely will bypass it in favor of the senior meet next summer because it's an Olympic year.

McTear's :10.2 tied the junior record set three years ago by the United States' Marshall Dill, a standout sprinter at Michigan State.

McTear also ran a blistering leadoff leg on the American 4 x 110 relay, which tied the meet record of :39.6, also set three years ago.

Bert Bonanno of San Jose City College, the American sprint coach, had nothing but praise for McTear's performance in light of a lack of competition.

"He knew the other three's times and knew the competition wasn't really in his class. Like most, he runs best against the best," Bonanno said.

The American sprint coach, who was head coach for the Mexican team in the 1968 Olympics and for the Peruvian team in the 1972 Olympics, compared McTear to Borzov.

"He's patented almost exactly like Borzov, especially size-wise," Bonanno observed. "Of course, Borzov's had the advantage of extra experience. McTear needs one more year of major experience to become the best."

Bonanno, who coached three bona fide :09.4 sprinters this season on his California junior college track championship team, said McTear "is a very amazing young man. He sees things at a level where it all should be."

"He's got that quiet, unassuming confidence," added Bonanno. "He gets one more year or less of experience under his belt and I say, yes, McTear will beat Borzov in the Olympics."

"The big thing about McTear," according to Bonanno, "is his power. He destroys people at 50 yards. There's not a negative thing about McTear. How can you dislike him? If you do, you're a little paranoid."

"We, as coaches, weren't here to improve marks. We wanted to maintain them," Bonanno said. "There were two diverse ideologies here today. We tried to transfer that idea in our meeting last night."

"The 24 hours leading up to this meet were ones of quiet readiness," added Bonanno. "McTear didn't set a record today, but you can always count on one thing—he's going to win, whatever the competition."

Nancy Kindig of Hastings concentrates on the upcoming hurdle in the pentathlon 110 meter hurdles. Kindig won the event with a time of :14.3 for 829 points, followed by Aili Alikso of the Soviet Union, clocked in :14.4 for 817 points.

Kindig Enjoys Crowd Support

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Going into the USA-USSR junior track meet, Nebraskan Nancy Kindig was afraid of what effect the crowd was going to have on her.

Midway through the meet's first pentathlon event, the 100 meter hurdles, the Hastings 16-year-old found out what the effect was to be — and she liked it.

"Coming down the track, I could hear the crowd roaring," she said motioning with her arms starting low and moving higher and higher to mirror the loudness. "It's great to have the crowd backing you."

The crowd wasn't Kindig's only backer, she had help in the infield also.

"It seems like everyone is really pulling for me," she said. "When I was throwing the shot, I went to pick it up and a man said 'pick it up with your left hand so you don't strain your right,' so I picked it up with my left."

"Even in the high jump there were people there pulling for me," she said. "I'd got up in the air and someone would yell 'kick,' so I would."

"It wasn't any secret that I was scared before the meet,"

she said. "But I called home and talked to everybody I could last night and it really helped."

"I could just about hear my family when I crossed the finish line of the hurdles," she said.

Kindig started the pentathlon giving the Nebraskans something to cheer about as she outdistanced second place Aili Alikso of the Soviet Union by one-tenth of a second and 12 points in the 100 meter hurdles to take the first event lead, 829-817 over Alikso.

The second event for pentathletes was the shot put, an event Kindig admits is her weakest.

But her put of 31-3/4 was good for second place behind Russia's Galina Zhilo.

"We decided what was wrong with the shot put after it was over," Kindig said. "It's been two weeks since I competed in Los Alamos (N.M. in equalizing) and I've only worked on it once since then."

A career tying best of 5-3 in the high jump placed her in third place in that event while Galina soared 5-9 to take a 109 point lead over Kindig after the first day's competition.

Zhilo, on the strength of her shot put and high jump effort's, totaled 2328 points while Kindig earned 2219.

"We're doing well in the pentathlon," said women's coach Will Stephens after reviewing the scores of Kindig and American teammate Cindy Mitchell. "Both of those girls are strongest in the long jump and with a 19 foot jump there, and if they can hang in there on the 200 meters tomorrow, we should be in the drivers seat."

"I know Nancy's capable of long jumping over 19 feet, and so is Cindy, but they aren't particularly strong in the 200 meters," he added. "We just have to hang in there."

The leader, Zhilo, finished fourth in Friday's only running event, but might be strong also in the long jump as she proved she can jump with her 5-9 high jump.

"We really don't know what to expect from them tomorrow," Kindig said. "They were supposed to be real strong in the shot put and they weren't. So even if they're supposed to be strong in tomorrow's events, we don't know if they're telling the truth or not."

Kindig is looking forward to the long jump competition, but she's a little apprehensive about the 200 meters. "I'll just be running scared in the 200," she said. "I always wonder if I'm in shape"

Being in second place by 109 points going into the final two events doesn't really bother the Hastings St. Cecilia junior-to-be.

"I'm not going to be thinking about winning at all," she said. "If it comes, it comes. If not, I don't want to be too disappointed."

First place or not, who could be disappointed with the effort put forth by Kindig?

The junior men's team of the United States won seven of ten events Friday to take a 64-53 lead in an international track and field dual meet against Soviet Russia.

Eleven more championships will be decided Saturday when the two-day competition concludes at the University of Nebraska's Ed Weir Track.

A crowd in excess of 6,000 turned out on a hot, steamy afternoon, most of them to get a glimpse of teenage sprint sensation Houston McTear of Florida, and they weren't disappointed.

McTear equalled the meet record of :10.2 seconds in the 100 meter run and led off a U.S. 4 x 110 relay team that also tied the record of :39.6 seconds.

McTear got out of the blocks quickly, like he always does, in both races. In the relay, he ran fast enough from the inside lane that he passed the baton to No. 2 runner Dwayne Strozier with a lead.

The Floridian, however, didn't have the spotlight all to himself.

Paul Jordan, 18-year-old from Philadelphia, got the Americans off to a lead in the opening event when he won the triple jump with a meet record mark of 53 feet, 9 inches. It broke the record set in 1972 by Russia's Mikhail Syegal at 53-5.

Jerome Hitchens of Macon, Ga., who finished second at 53-7, also bettered the old mark.

"I wasn't really surprised (at the 53-9) because I have been jumping real well all week," Jordan, a Tennessee sophomore-to-be, said. "I thought I could hit 54 feet," he added.

"I had a tough year at Tennessee because of injuries and I wanted to win here because it was the first time a junior American ever beat a Russian in the triple jump."

There were a couple of surprises by Americans. One was by Paul Buttermark, who ran a 3:45.9 in the 1,500 as favored Steve Lacy of the U.S. finished fourth. Another was the loss of Tony Darden to Richard Massey, both U.S. runners, in the 400 meters. Darden, favored on the basis of the top pre-meet performance, went out too fast and faded coming down the stretch.

"My strategy was to wait until a half mile to go, but stay close," Buttermark, an 18-year-old freshman at North Carolina State, said. "I knew I could run a 1:51 half and could win if I was close at that point."

He mentioned that he lost to Lacy in qualifying at Knoxville when he was boxed. "It was about time to win one."

Alberto Salazar, a Cuban native who now lives in Wayland, Mass., also pulled a surprise when he topped favored Anatoly Dimov of Russia by 42 seconds in the 5,000-meter run.

Salazar won the race by 100 yards over fellow American Ralph King of Atlanta, Ga. The time of 14:30.3 wasn't close to the meet record, but the victory margin was decisive.

The other U.S. victory went to Greg Robertson as expected. He won the 110-meter hurdles in :14.2 seconds, finishing a full five yards in front of Alexander Puchkov of the Soviet.

Litvinov, 209-6 in the discus, Zhasily Arkhipenko, 51.5 in the 400 hurdles, and in the 10-kilometer walk.

The Americans will be favored in seven of Saturday's events. They scored four points better than the Lincoln Star's form chart indicated.

Morehead, Cheeseborough Supply Holiday Fireworks

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Over 6,000 spectators had their eyes focused on Houston McTear, but Brenda Morehead and Chandra Cheeseborough supplied the Fourth of July record-breaking fireworks in the sprints for the Americans as the USA women took a 36-26 lead over the Soviet Union after the first day's competition at the University of Nebraska's Ed Weir track.

Cheeseborough and Morehead, teammates for the Tennessee State Track Club when not running for the national team, broke the 100 meter tape in identical meet record times of :11.4 while the photo showed Morehead the event winner.

Exactly one hour later, the two combined for a circus-style relay exchange in the 440 yard relay to keep from getting disqualified, and raced to the only other women's record set in Friday competition with a :44.8 clocking, four-tenths of a second faster than the previous record.

Running the leadoff leg, Cheeseborough easily made up the inside stagger and then some on the USSR team going into the exchange zone for the handoff to Morehead.

Watching a spot taped on the track, Morehead took off sprinting to receive the baton from Cheeseborough. With her eye on the end of the zone, she didn't have the baton from Cheeseborough and jumped almost straight up in the air to keep from running out of the exchange before making connections.

Her quick thinking tactic worked as she controlled the baton within the exchange limits.

While Cheeseborough and Morehead were working their acrobatics, the Russian team missed its first exchange and dropped the baton leaving Morehead and teammates Evelyn Ashford and Bernadine Givens none but the clock to compete with.

"After Chandra got that lead and Brenda's experience raring her head back to help her make the exchange, Brenda didn't have to run that fast with the lead," said Will Stephens, head women's coach for the US team. "And the exchanges between Brenda and Ashford and Givens were perfect. None of them had to pull like they did to win, but they all ran a tremendous race."

"That's got to be an American record," Stephens added. "Those aren't junior times either, they can run with anybody when they run like that."

Both Morehead and Cheeseborough's time in 100 meters tie Morehead's American record set last week, and neither got off to good starts.

Morehead had a false start the first try and had to hesitate for the second start.

"I couldn't get out fast like I usually do after that false start," she said. "I just had to sit back and wait for the gun."

"I didn't think either one had a very good start," Stephens said. "If Chandra would have gotten out a little better, she might have beaten Brenda since she had to wait for the gun."

Morehead is a 17-year-old headed for Tennessee State to work under Ed Temple, coach of Wilma Rudolph and Wyomia Tyas.

Cheeseborough, a 16-year-old sophomore-to-be in high school at Jacksonville (Fla.) is also hoping to enroll at Tennessee State "when I'm old enough."

Both girls will be trying to make it a record breaking sweep Saturday in the 200 meters, a race Temple predicts will be "just as close as the 100."

Stephens received some unexpected points along with the scoring he expected for the first day's competition. He said the team scored about five more than he had figured.

The Star's first day prediction chart was 3 1/2 points off of the first day total.

Cathy Sulinski of the USA provided a pleasant surprise in the javelin as her 177-1 throw bettered the Soviet Union's Vera Portnova by more than a foot.

The Russians sweep of the discus was the only event the American women didn't win.

Pat Helms raced to a personal

best of :53.1 in the 400 meter run leading a 1-2 sweep while Hillary Noden won the women's 1500 meters in 4:26.6.

"Hillary has really been a dream since she showed up here for practice," Stephens said. "She's one of the best working competitors we have here. Those are the type that come through for you when you need it."

Stephens' prediction for Saturday's competition is the USA team plus four, but he's quick to point out that in all the track meets he coached against the Russians, and that's quite a few, they're not the type to quit.

McTear's Heart With Borzov

By RANDY YORK
Houston McTear's legs were in Lincoln Friday, but his heart may well have been in Kiev, Russia, where Olympic champion Valery Borzov ran :10.0 to beat the Americans in the 100-meter dash.

McTear, pending world record-holder in the 100-yard dash, achieved :10.2 in the American-Soviet junior meet at Nebraska's Ed Weir track.

"Yeh, I'd like to run against Borzov," McTear said about a half hour after emerging from a cluster of television and newspaper cameras and radio microphones.

"He can be beat. He's just another sprinter like the rest of us," the 16-year-old McTear said of Borzov. "I always like to be where the best competition is."

For all practical purposes, McTear was unchallenged Friday. He was in complete command before the sprint was half finished.

"My start was all right," McTear said. "Anyway, it was a lot better than it was last week in Bermuda."

McTear could have qualified for the American-Russian senior meet had he participated in qualifying competition at Eugene, Ore.

However, there was a dispute over financial arrangements and AAU officials in Eugene didn't send McTear enough money to make the trip. Instead, he qualified for the junior meet in Knoxville, Tenn.

Although he will be eligible for the junior meet again next year, McTear indicated he likely will bypass it in favor of the senior meet next summer because it's an Olympic year.

McTear's :10.2 tied the junior record set three years ago by the United States' Marshall Dill, a standout sprinter at Michigan State.

McTear also ran a blistering leadoff leg on the American 4 x 110 relay, which tied the meet record of :39.6, also set three years ago.

Bert Bonanno of San Jose City College, the American sprint coach, had nothing but praise for McTear's performance in light of a lack of competition.

"He knew the other three's times and knew the competition wasn't really in his class. Like most, he runs best against the best," Bonanno said.

The American sprint coach, who was head coach for the Mexican team in the 1968 Olympics and for the Peruvian team in the 1972 Olympics, compared McTear to Borzov.

"He's patented almost exactly like Borzov, especially size-wise," Bonanno observed. "Of course, Borzov's had the advantage of extra experience. McTear needs one more year of major experience to become the best."

Bonanno, who coached three bona fide :09.4 sprinters this season on his California junior college track championship team, said McTear "is a very amazing young man. He sees things at a level where it all should be."

"He's got that quiet, unassuming confidence," added Bonanno. "He gets one more year or less of experience under his belt and I say, yes, McTear will beat Borzov in the Olympics."

"The big thing about McTear," according to Bonanno, "is his power. He destroys people at 50 yards. There's not a negative thing about McTear. How can you dislike him? If you do, you're a little paranoid."

"We, as coaches, weren't here to improve marks. We wanted to maintain them," Bonanno said. "There were two diverse ideologies here today. We tried to transfer that idea in our meeting last night."

"The 24 hours leading up to this meet were ones of quiet readiness," added Bonanno. "McTear didn't set a record today, but you can always count on one thing—he's going to win, whatever the competition."

Midway through the meet's first pentathlon event, the 100 meter hurdles, the Hastings 16-year-old found out what the effect was to be—and she liked it.

"Coming down the track, I could hear the crowd roaring," she said motioning with her arms starting low and moving higher and higher to mirror the loudness. "It's great to have the crowd backing you."

The crowd wasn't Kindig's only backer, she had help in the infield also.

"It seems like everyone is really pulling for me," she said. "When I was throwing the shot, I went to pick it up and a man said 'pick it up with your left hand so you don't strain your right,' so I picked it up with my left."

"Even in the high jump there were people there pulling for me," she said. "I'd got up in the air and someone would yell 'kick,' so I would."

"It wasn't any secret that I was scared before the meet,"

Nancy Kindig of Hastings concentrates on the upcoming hurdle in the pentathlon 110 meter hurdles. Kindig won the event with a time of :14.3 for 829 points, followed by Aili Alikso of the Soviet Union, clocked in :14.4 for 817 points.

Kindig Enjoys Crowd Support

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Going into the USA-USSR junior track meet, Nebraska's Nancy Kindig was afraid of what effect the crowd was going to have on her.

Kindig started the pentathlon giving the Nebraskans something to cheer about as she outdistanced second place Aili Alikso of the Soviet Union by one-tenth of a second and 12 points in the 100 meter hurdles to take the first event lead, 829-817 over Alikso.

The second event for pentathletes was the shot put, an event Kindig admits is her weakest.

But her put of 31-3/4 was good for second place behind Russia's Galina Zhilo.

"We decided what was wrong with the shot put after it was over," Kindig said. "It's been two weeks since I competed in Los Alamos (N.M. in equalizing) and I've only worked on it once since then."

A career tying best of 5-3 in the high jump placed her in third place in that event while Galina soared 5-9 to take a 109 point lead over Kindig after the first day's competition.

Zhilo, on the strength of her shot put and high jump effort, totaled 2328 points while Kindig earned 2219.

"We're doing well in the pentathlon," said women's coach Will Stephens after reviewing the scores of Kindig and American teammate Cindy Mitchell. "Both of those girls are strongest in the long jump and with a 19 foot jump there, and if they can hang in there on the 200 meters tomorrow, we should be in the drivers seat."

"I know Nancy's capable of long jumping over 19 feet, and so is Cindy, but they aren't particularly strong in the 200 meters," he added. "We just have to hang in there."

The leader, Zhilo, finished fourth in Friday's only running event, but might be strong also in the long jump as she proved she can jump with her 5-9 high jump.

"We really don't know what to expect from them tomorrow," Kindig said. "They were supposed to be real strong in the shot put and they weren't. So even if they're supposed to be strong in tomorrow's events, we don't know if they're telling the truth or not."

Kindig is looking forward to the long jump competition, but she's a little apprehensive about the 200 meters. "I'll just be running scared in the 200," she said. "I always wonder if I'm in shape."

Being in second place by 109 points going into the final two events doesn't really bother the Hastings St. Cecilia junior-to-be.

"I'm not going to be thinking about winning at all," she said. "If it comes, it comes. If not, I don't want to be too disappointed."

First place or not, who could be disappointed with the effort put forth by Kindig?

Houston McTear heads for the wire in the 100 meter sprint in the U.S.-USSR track meet Friday for a :10.2 clocking and a tie for the meet record. Russian Teter Nvorohev grimaces to a third place finish.

American Men Dominate First Day Of US-USSR Track

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor
The junior men's team of the United States won seven of ten events Friday to take a 64-53 lead in an international track and field dual meet against Soviet Russia.

Eleven more championships will be decided Saturday when the two-day competition concludes at the University of Nebraska's Ed Weir Track.

A crowd in excess of 6,000 turned out on a hot, steamy afternoon, most of them to get a glimpse of teenage sprint sensation Houston McTear of Florida, and they weren't disappointed.

McTear equalled the meet record of :10.2 seconds in the 100 meter run and led off a U.S. 4 x 110 relay team that also tied the record of :39.6 seconds.

McTear got out of the blocks quickly, like he always does, in both races. In the relay, he ran fast enough from the inside lane that he passed the baton to No. 2 runner Dwayne Strozier with a lead.

The Floridian, however, didn't have the spotlight all to himself.

Paul Jordan, 18-year-old from Philadelphia, got the Americans off to a lead in the opening event when he won the triple jump with a meet record mark of 53 feet, 9 inches. It broke the record set in 1972 by Russia's Mikhail Syegal at 53-5.

Jerome Hutchings of Macon, Ga., who finished second at 53-7, also bettered the old mark.

"I wasn't really surprised (at the 53-9) because I have been jumping real well all week," Jordan, a Tennessee sophomore-to-be, said. "I thought I could hit 54 feet," he added.

"I had a tough year at Tennessee because of injuries and I wanted to win here because it was the first time a junior American ever beat a Russian in the triple jump."

There were a couple of surprises by Americans. One was by Paul Buttermark, who ran a 3:45.9 in the 1,500 as favored Steve Lacy of the U.S. finished fourth. Another was the loss of Tony Darden to Richard Massey, both U.S. runners, in the 400 meters. Darden, favored on the basis of the top pre-meet performance, went out too fast and faded coming down the stretch.

"My strategy was to wait until a half mile to go, but stay close," Buttermark, an 18-year-old freshman at North Carolina State, said. "I knew I could run a 1:51 half and could win if I was close at that point."

He mentioned that he lost to Lacy in qualifying at Knoxville when he was boxed. "It was about time to win one."

Alberto Salazar, a Cuban native who now lives in Wayland, Mass., also pulled a surprise when he topped favored Anatoliy Dimov of Russia by 42 seconds in the 5,000-meter run.

Salazar won the race by 100 yards over fellow American Ralph King of Atlanta, Ga. The time of 14:30.3 wasn't close to the meet record, but the victory margin was decisive.

The other U.S. victory went to Greg Robertson as expected. He won the 110-meter hurdles in :14.2 seconds, finishing a full five yards in front of Alexander Puchkov of the Soviet.

Russia's four victories were by Vladimir Kiselev who set a mark of 61-1 in the shot put, Sergei

Litvinov, 209-6 in the discus, Zhasily Arkhipenko, 51.5 in the 400 hurdles, and in the 10-kilometer walk.

The Americans will be favored in seven of Saturday's events. They scored four points better than the Lincoln Star's form chart indicated.

Stonewalk Likely Pick In Cornhusker Handicap

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Dick Becker is more than pleased with Saturday's $100,000-added Cornhusker Handicap.

"I think it'll be a real good horse race. We have three horses in for this and some real strong local horses that have been with us the whole meet," noted Ak-Sar-Ben's executive director and general director. "Hey Rube, Sharp Gary and Stonewalk will all be tough, although Stonewalk will probably be the favorite."

While Becker is confident that Ak-Sar-Ben's second $100,000 race this season will present one of the strongest fields possible, he said it was doubtful if the crowd totals could match last Saturday's one-day Omaha record of 30,303.

Of course, Preakness winner Master Derby was the big lure in last week's Omaha Gold Cup Stakes.

"Overall, we have a real good card, but I don't think we have a Master Derby," he said. "However, we have some horses who are awfully close to a Master Derby."

Becker is anticipating a crowd of between 26,000 and 27,000 with a mutual handle of $2 million. "Don't forget, last year when we had the Cornhusker, we ran 10 races," Becker added.

With the usual nine races Saturday, Ak-Sar-Ben can probably handle more than $2 million. Last year's Cornhusker Handicap day handle was $1,910,749.

One of the major reasons for Becker's optimism with this year's Cornhusker is the Timberland Stable's Stonewalk, the 14-horse field's top-weight with 120 pounds.

A winner of three races in six starts this year for earnings of $93,800, Stonewalk annexed the $100,000 Massachusetts Handicap on June 15 at Suffolk Downs. He also finished second to Mr. Lucky Phoenix on June 21 in the Michigan Mile and One-Eighth Handicap in his latest outing.

Stonewalk, who must concede from five to 11 pounds to his 13 rivals in this mile and one-eighth chase, will be ridden by riding stand-out Ron Turcotte, Turcotte, a veteran of New York racing, gained fame as the rider of 1973 Triple Crown winner Secretariat and Riva Ridge, who won two of the 1972 Triple Crown events.

Second top-weight at 115 pounds will be George McLaughlin's Brush Cutter. Brush Cutter won the $35,000-added Ak-Sar-Ben Handicap over 6 furlongs and placed fourth in the June 21 Board of Governors' Handicap here over a mile and 1/16th.

Dan Lasater's Hey Rube, who finished third in the Michigan Mile event, was flown here from Detroit with Stonewalk. A winner of two of seven starts this year for earnings of $39,070, Hey Rube will be ridden by the track's leading rider, John Lively.

Paul Thomas and Ernie Davidson's Horine, a $115 mutual price winner of the Governors' two weeks ago, H. A. Mayor Jr. and Dick Boushka's 3-year-old standout Bold Trap; and L. Lea Davis' Rooter, winner of the King's Handicap here on Memorial Day, appear to be the locals with the best chance of stopping Stonewalk.

Other entrants, their weights and jockeys in this event for 3-year-olds & up include J. and C. Jorgensen's Terrage (Jim Cuddie, 109); Ed Luther's Ride The Bubbles (John Rettele, 110); Jack Grunwald's Mike James (Jim Sorenson, 111); the Green Thumb Stable's Aid (111); Rose Osmundson's Who's Commander (109); Mrs. S. Jo Stump's Stumpy The Boy (Fred Ecoffey, 113); Lowell Stevens' Steven Would (Tom Greer, 111).

Billie Jean King runs across the Center Court as she convincingly defeats Evonne Goolagong in the singles final at Wimbledon.

King Ends Career With Singles Title

Wimbledon, England (UPI) — Billie Jean King ran down the curtain on her fabulous tennis career Friday by crushing Evonne Goolagong Cawley of Australia, 6-0, 6-1, to win a record-tying sixth Wimbledon singles crown in one of the most one-sided finals played on the famed center court.

The match lasted just 38 minutes as Mrs. King, the third seed from San Mateo, Calif., lost just 10 points in the first set and 14 in the second.

"It's about the closest I have ever played to a perfect match," she said. "What a way to end my career — here at Wimbledon. I wanted to go out high and I did."

Vitas Gerulaitis of Howard Beach, N.Y., and Sandy Mayer of Wayne, N.J., completed the United States' Fourth of July tennis celebrations by becoming the first American pair to win the men's doubles since 1967 when they beat Colin Dowdswell of Rhodesia and Alan Stone of Australia 7-5, 8-6, 6-4.

"I don't think she knew what hit her," Billie Jean said. "Everything I hit was so close to the net she couldn't read it."

Mrs. Cawley summed it up: "I couldn't do anything right and she couldn't do anything wrong."

Mrs. King, 31, tied Suzanne Lenglen's six singles wins and Californian Elizabeth Ryan's 19 overall victories, both achieved before 1939. The Ryan titles were all doubles.

Bubbling with happiness, Billie Jean didn't even know what her winnings were. "Someone asked me how much it was and I had no idea." The winner's purse was $16,100. Her opponent received $9,600.

Last September the pair played an epic final at Forest Hills where Billie Jean came from behind to defeat Mrs. Cawley, 7-5 in the deciding set, to win the U.S. Open title for the fourth time. All their matches have been closely contested, but it was no contest Friday.

"I am not coming back. I may play double at Forest Hills but I don't know yet," said Mrs. King. On the way to her title, she beat Elizabeth Vlietman of South Africa, Briton Veronica Burton, fellow Californian Julie Anthony, Michael Gurdal of Belgium, Russia's Olga Morozova, and defending champion Chris Evert.

Wall Cards 67 To Hold Lead

Milwaukee (AP) — Veteran Art Wall, who had not shot a competitive round in the 60s until two days ago, fired his third consecutive five-under-par 67 Friday for a three-stroke lead going into Saturday's final of the $130,000 Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament.

Wall, 51, who amassed 13 victories in 26 years on the tour, but none since 1966, showed a 201 total, 15 under par for three rounds on the 7,010-yard Tuckaway Country Club course.

Gibby Gilbert was second at 204 after a third-round 69. Grouped at 205 were Gary McCord, Rod Curl, Mac McLendon, Mark Hayes, Dave Hill and Ken Still.

McCord shot a 65. Curl, McLendon and Hayes had 66s. Hill a 69 and Still a 70.

Wall, voted golf's player of the year in 1959 when he won the Masters, said he has been in a 1 1/2-year slump and admitted he haven't got it down by a long shot. "I'm still hitting too many shots to the right."

Wall curved his first shot on the third round sharply to the right. It landed between two gaping traps about 175 yards shy of the green. But he blasted a five-iron shot to the front edge of the green and sank the long putt for a birdie three.

Wall's third round 67 was the lowest score in the tournament's history. The previous record was 68, set by Gary McCord in 1967.

Platte River Study To Offer Solutions

By TOM VINT
Outdoor Writer

Carroll Hamon doesn't anticipate winning many new friends when the Platte River Basin Study comes before the public later this month.

It's been a tough road for the three-year, $3 million study but Hamon thinks the Platte Level B Study is the best solution of compromising interests to be found.

"Our job was to try to bring these adverse interests together in a workable solution," Hamon said of the study involving plans for the future of the Platte River Basin.

The basin, which includes some 53 per cent of the land area in Nebraska, has been a warring ground for irrigation interests, conservationists, agriculturalists, recreationalists and others in past years. The Platte Level B Study was intended to objectively determine which programs would be in the best public interest.

In this respect, Hamon points out recreational needs as a prime concern for the future. Some $100 million of the estimated $600 million total cost is directed to a future recreational program for the Platte Basin.

"The most important aspect of our recreational findings is the series of access nodes along the Platte and Elkhorn river systems," Hamon said. "We see a need for providing access to rivers in this state."

Hamon indicated few public access points are now available along these rivers and it is difficult for the public to make use of the recreational potential for that reason.

To combat the situation the study recommends some 23 locations along the Platte and Elkhorn be purchased and developed as river access recreational areas.

The study also calls for development of sandpit lakes for recreation at some 20 sites. And the study recommends 42 Nebraska communities purchase flood plains within their cities for development of city parks or recreation areas.

"The main thing we're trying to do is open up the rivers for public access," Hamon continued. "This would be staged over a period of time. Much money is involved in the necessary land purchase and development."

The town park size would consist of anywhere from a few acres to 30 or more, according to the study director. Size would depend upon community need for recreational sites and facilities.

Petty Wins Despite Tires

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The tires on Richard Petty's Dodge appeared to be his undoing early in Friday's Firecracker 400 stock car race, but ended up the reason for his first success in 15 years of driving in the annual July 4 event.

Petty, a Firecracker runner-up for the past four years, credited a switch of left tires late in the race for a cornering advantage that gave him a 2.35 second victory over former teammate Buddy Baker.

Richard Petty, Dodge, 158.381 m.p.h., 160 laps, 17:35.5. 2. Buddy Baker, Ford, 160 laps, 17:42.5. Dave Marcis, Dodge, 159 laps, 17:46.5.

"In this respect, we're trying to keep development, such as businesses and manufacturers, out of the flood plains," Hamon said. He explained this would minimize costly property loss during extreme high water years along flood plains.

Other recreational provisions of the study include the construction of Willow Creek Reservoir near Pierce. The reservoir would be 1,075 acres at normal pool and would be desirable as a recreational area as well as a flood control project.

An historical site development would take place parallel to the Loup Power Canal as a segment of the Mormon Trail between Genoa and Fullerton, according to the study.

The National Recreation Area would provide for the purchase and development of the flood plain along the stretches of riverways listed above, according to Hamon.

Billie Jean King runs across the Center Court as she convincingly defeats Evonne Goolagong in the singles final at Wimbledon.

King Ends Career With Singles Title

Wimbledon, England (UPI) — Billie Jean King rang down the curtain on her fabulous tennis career Friday by crushing Evonne Goolagong Cawley of Australia, 6-0, 6-1, to win a record-tying sixth Wimbledon singles crown in one of the most one-sided finals played on the famed center court.

The match lasted just 38 minutes as Mrs. King, the third seed from San Mateo, Calif., lost just 10 points in the first set and 14 in the second.

"It's about the closest I have ever played to a perfect match," she said. "What a way to end my career — here at Wimbledon. I wanted to go out high and I did."

Vitas Gerulaitis of Howard Beach, N.Y., and Sandy Mayer of Wayne, N.J., completed the United States' Fourth of July tennis celebrations by becoming the first American pair to win the men's doubles since 1967 when they beat Colin Dowdeswell of Rhodesia and Alan Stone of Australia 7-5, 8-6, 6-4.

"I don't think she knew what hit her," Billie Jean said. "Everything I hit was so close to the net she couldn't read it."

Mrs. Cawley summed it up: "I couldn't do anything right and she couldn't do anything wrong."

Mrs. King, 31, tied Suzanne Lenglen's six singles wins and Californian Elizabeth Ryan's 19 overall victories, both achieved before 1939. The Ryan titles were all doubles.

Bubbling with happiness, Billie Jean didn't even know what her winnings were. "Someone asked me how much it was and I had no idea." The winner's purse was $16,100. Her opponent received $9,600.

Last September the pair played an epic final at Forest Hills where Billie Jean came from behind to defeat Mrs. Cawley, 7-5 in the deciding set, to win the U.S. Open title for the fourth time. All their matches have been closely contested, but it was no contest Friday.

"I am not coming back. I may play double at Forest Hills but I don't know yet," said Mrs. King. On the way to her title, she beat Elizabeth Viotman of South Africa, Briton Veronica Burton, fellow Californian Julie Anthony, Michael Gurdal of Belgium, Russia's Olga Morozova, and defending champion Chris Evert.

The basin, which includes some 53 per cent of the land area in Nebraska, has been a warring ground for irrigation interests, conservationists, agriculturalists, recreationalists and others in past years. The Platte Level B Study was intended to objectively determine which programs would be in the best public interest.

In this respect, Hamon points out recreational needs as a prime concern for the future. Some $100 million of the estimated $600 million total cost is directed to a future recreational program for the Platte Basin.

"The most important aspect of our recreational findings is the series of access nodes along the Platte and Elkhorn river systems," Hamon said. "We see a need for providing access to rivers in this state."

Hamon indicated few public access points are now available along these rivers and it is difficult for the public to make use of the recreational potential for that reason.

Wall curved his first shot on the third round sharply to the right. It landed between two gaping traps about 175 yards shy of the green. But he blasted a five-iron shot to the front edge of the green and sank the long putt for a birdie three.

Wall, 51, who amassed 13 victories in 26 years on the tour, but none since 1966, showed a 201 total, 15 under par for three rounds on the 7,010-yard Tuckaway Country Club course.

Gibby Gilbert was second at 204 after a third-round 69. Grouped at 205 were Gary McCord, Rod Curly, Mac McLendon, Mark Hayes, Dave Hill and Ken Still.

McCord shot a 65. Curly, McLendon and Hayes had 66s, Hill a 69 and Still a 70.

Stonewalk Likely Pick In Cornhusker Handicap

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Dick Becker is more than pleased with Saturday's $100,000-added Cornhusker Handicap.

"I think it'll be a real good horse race. We have three horses in for this and some real strong local horses that have been with us the whole meet," noted Ak-Sar-Ben's executive director and general director. "Hey Rube, Sharp Gary and Stonewalk will all be tough, although Stonewalk will probably be the favorite."

While Becker is confident that Ak-Sar-Ben's second $100,000 race this season will present one of the strongest fields possible, he said it was doubtful if the crowd totals could match last Saturday's one-day Omaha record of 30,303.

Of course, Preakness winner Master Derby was the big lure in last week's Omaha Gold Cup Stakes.

"Overall, we have a real good card, but I don't think we have a Master Derby," he said. "However, we have some horses who are awfully close to a Master Derby."

Becker is anticipating a crowd of between 26,000 and 27,000 with a mutual handle of $2 million. "Don't forget, last year when we had the Cornhusker, we ran 10 races," Becker added.

With the usual nine races Saturday, Ak-Sar-Ben can probably handle more than $2 million. Last year's Cornhusker Handicap day handle was $1,910,749.

One of the major reasons for Becker's optimism with this year's Cornhusker is the Timberland Stable's Stonewalk, the 14-horse field's top-weight with 120 pounds.

A winner of three races in six starts this year for earnings of $93,800, Stonewalk annexed the $100,000 Massachusetts Handicap on June 15 at Suffolk Downs. He also finished second to Mr. Lucky Phoenix on June 21 in the Michigan Mile and One-Eighth Handicap in his latest outing.

Stonewalk, who must concede from five to 11 pounds to his 13 rivals in this mile and one-eighth chase, will be ridden by riding standout Ron Turcott, Turcott, a veteran of New York racing, gained fame as the rider of 1973 Triple Crown winner Secretariat and Riva Ridge, who won two of the 1972 Triple Crown events.

Second top-weight at 115 pounds will be George McLaughlin's Brush Cutter. Brush Cutter won the $35,000-added Ak-Sar-Ben Handicap over 6 furlongs and placed fourth in the June 21 Board of Governors' Handicap here over a mile and 1/16th.

Dan Lasater's Hey Rube, who finished third in the Michigan Mile event, was flown here from Detroit with Stonewalk. A winner of two of seven starts this year for earnings of $39,070, Hey Rube will be ridden by the track's leading rider, John Lively.

Paul Thomas and Ernie Davidson's Horine, a $115 mutual price winner of the Governors' two weeks ago, H. A. Mayor Jr. and Dick Boushka's 3-year-old standout Bold Trap, and L. Lea Davis' Rooter, winner of the King's Handicap here on Memorial Day, appear to be the locals with the best chance of stopping Stonewalk.

Other entrants, their weights and jockeys in this event for 3-year-olds and up include J. and C. Jorgensen's Terrage (Jim Cuddie, 109); Ed Luther's Ride The Bubbies (John Rettele, 110); Jack Grunwald's Mike James (Jim Sorenson, 111); the Green Thumb Stable's Avid (111); Rose Osmundson's Who's Commander (109); Mrs. S. Jo Stump's Stumpy The Boy (Fred Ecoffey, 113); Lowell Stevens' Steven Would (Tom Greer, 111).

Platte River Study To Offer Solutions

By TOM VINT
Outdoor Writer

Carroll Hamon doesn't anticipate winning many new friends when the Platte River Basin Study comes before the public later this month.

It's been a tough road for the three-year, $3 million study but Hamon thinks the Platte Level B Study is the best solution of compromising interests to be found.

"Our job was to try to bring these adverse interests together in a workable solution," Hamon said of the study involving plans for the future of the Platte River Basin.

The basin, which includes some 53 per cent of the land area in Nebraska, has been a warring ground for irrigation interests, conservationists, agriculturalists, recreationalists and others in past years. The Platte Level B Study was intended to objectively determine which programs would be in the best public interest.

In this respect, Hamon points out recreational needs as a prime concern for the future. Some $100 million of the estimated $600 million total cost is directed to a future recreational program for the Platte Basin.

"The most important aspect of our recreational findings is the series of access nodes along the Platte and Elkhorn river systems," Hamon said. "We see a need for providing access to rivers in this state."

Hamon indicated few public access points are now available along these rivers and it is difficult for the public to make use of the recreational potential for that reason.

To combat the situation the study recommends some 23 locations along the Platte and Elkhorn be purchased and developed as river access recreational areas.

The study also calls for development of sandpit lakes for recreation at some 20 sites. And the study recommends 42 Nebraska communities purchase flood plains within their cities for development of city parks or recreation areas.

"The main thing we're trying to do is open up the rivers for public access," Hamon continued. "This would be staged over a period of time. Much money is involved in the necessary land purchase and development."

The town park size would consist of anywhere from a few acres to 30 or more, according to the study director. Size would depend upon community need for recreational sites and facilities.

"In this respect, we're trying to keep development, such as businesses and manufacturers, out of the flood plains," Hamon said. He explained this would minimize costly property loss during extreme high water years along flood plains.

Other recreational provisions of the study include the construction of Willow Creek Reservoir near Pierce. The reservoir would be 1,075 acres at normal pool and would be desirable as a recreational area as well as a flood control project.

An historical site development would take place parallel to the Loup Power Canal as a segment of the Mormon Trail between Genoa and Fullerton, according to the study.

The National Recreation Area would provide for the purchase and development of the flood plain along the stretches of riverways listed above, according to Hamon.

Petty Wins Despite Tires

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The tires on Richard Petty's Dodge appeared to be his undoing early in Friday's Firecracker 400 stock car race, but ended up the reason for his first success in 15 years of driving in the annual July 4 event.

Petty, a Firecracker runnerup for the past four years, credited a switch of left tires late in the race for a cornering advantage that gave him a 2.35 second victory over former teammate Buddy Baker.

Bobby Gan Wins

By MARK GORDON

Star Sports Writer
Omaha — Al Herrera and Cliff Pierce had a simple plan for Bobby Gan — get the lead and stay there.

"I broke on top and stayed there just like Mr. Pierce told me to," said Herrera, who piloted Bobby Gan to a nose victory here Friday at Ak-Sar-Ben in the $36,600 Marion H. Van Berg stakes.

For most of the mile and 70-yard chase that attracted 14 3-year-old Nebraska-breds, Bobby Gan appeared as if he was ready to win in a romp.

He led by as many as five lengths down the backstretch, but was hard pressed to turn back Roman Zipper. Roman Zipper, last year's 2-year-old champion at Fonner Park in Grand Island actually gained the lead through the early part of the stretch run.

The victory was just the second this year in 11 outings for the 3-year-old colt. The winners' share of $20,130 boosted Bobby Gan's 1975 barnroll for owners R. H. and Mary Enns of Hancock, Iowa, to $25,897.

As a 13-1 outsider and coupled in the mutual betting field with Kool Kat and Draft Supreme, Bobby Gan returned $29.20, $11.00 and $5.60. Roman Zipper, who earned $6,954 for his second-place, placed for $18.00 and $7.40. Slidan showed for $6.40.

The riding standstill on the holiday program watched by 21,422 was Ken Jones, who piloted three winners. He started with

French Grabs Second Win

Edd French of El Paso, Tex. captured his second straight sprint car feature, at Midwest Speedway Friday night, nipping Norman Martin of Dallas, Tex. Lincolnite Don Maxwell took the lead and held it until hitting the wall on the fifth lap. He regained the lead until mechanical problems, initiated in the accident, sidelined his car from the race. Then Lincolnite Wayne Holz took command until the 15th lap when the El Paso native roared into the lead.

French then held off hard-charging Martin for the win.

French Heat (10 laps) — 1. Wayne Holz, Lincoln. 2. Larry Kirkpatrick, Wood River, Ill. 3. Norman Martin, Dallas, Tex. 4. Rich Brahm, Lincoln. Second heat (10 laps) — 1. Don Maxwell, Lincoln. 2. Hank Elmdorf, Omaha. 3. Dick Sutcliffe, Greenwood, Mo. 4. Jon Backlund, Kansas City, Mo. 5. Jerry Miller, El Paso, Tex. 6. Jim Golden, Omaha. 4. Lloyd Beckman, Lincoln. Consolation (6 laps) — 1. French, Lincoln. 2. Dick Kenney, Omaha. 3. Brahm, Lincoln. 4. Elmdorf, 5. Kenney, 6. Backlund, 7. Dunkle, 8. Beckman. A Feature (25 laps) — 1. French, 2. Martin, 3. Elmdorf, 4. Kenney, 5. Backlund, 7. Dunkle, 8. Beckman.

Russian Track Teams Lead Senior AAU Meet

KIEV, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Soviet track stars, led by Olympic gold medalist Valery Borzov, dominated a weary American men's team and Soviet women blasted American and Bulgarian opponents on the opening day of a two-day track and field meet.

Soviet men won six of the nine events and led 55-39 points while Soviet women won all but one of seven events and had 49 points compared with 24 for the Americans.

The meet, cancelled and later rescheduled after a squabble over television rights, was hastily assembled and some U.S. competitors, including Bill Shuff of Lafayette, La., arrived in Kiev only four hours before the start of the meet.

Both the hammer throw and the pole vault were delayed until Saturday, the latter because the Americans' poles had not arrived.

U.S. Coach Lee Calhoun had asked that the meet be termed "friendly" with no points tallied, but the Soviets declined.

Joni Huntley of Sheridan, Ore., won the women's high jump at 6 feet, 1/2 inch for the U.S. women's only victory.

Omaha Downs Indianapolis

Omaha (AP)—Mark Littell hurled a three-hitter while Frank Ortenzio and U. L. Washington supplied the power as Omaha raked Indianapolis 6-1 Thursday night.

It was Littell's ninth straight victory after he lost his first three starts. Littell had a no-hitter going until two out in the seventh when Indianapolis first baseman Dave Revering tripled into the right field corner, driving in the Indians' only run.

Ortenzio singled in a run in the first and opened the third with a 400-foot homer to center. Washington rapped a bases-loaded triple in the fifth.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast for Saturday

Libra has a sentimental streak that is strong, wide and obvious, once the right buttons are pushed. The native can appear indifferent, objective, an advocate of impartiality — but when the chips are down, when the crunch occurs, Libra is Venus and caring and soft and willing to sacrifice for principle — and in the main for love. Do you understand your Libra?

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Accent is on permanency — special kinds of relationships including marriage. Work in conjunction with one who is not stranger to legalities. Means be positive that you are moving forward in way that creates harmony, not friction.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Power base is important. Means you need substance, not promise. You require a standing start, a getting-away place, a platform. You need not take a back seat. Key is to do what must be done and to get what is rightfully earned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Stick to basics. Leave fantasies for another time. Emphasis now is on combining practicality and imagination. You can do so in profitable manner. Recent health problem can be understood and properly treated. Conservative course would seem to be best for you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Lunar cycle is such that you get rid of obstacles, begin fresh with assets and start dancing to your own tune. Leo/Aquarius figure prominently. Some people tell you that you were right all along. Be grateful but do not sink back into security blanket of past. Move forward!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Emphasis on change of scene, application of creative abilities and special relationships with children, loved ones. Nothing is apt to be lukewarm — now it's all or nothing. Imprint your mark, style. You need not take back seat or accept watered-down versions. You'll see!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You are enlightened. You get rid of some fears, doubts. Dynamic approach brings best results. Highlight independence of thought, action. One who is handicapped could teach you valuable lesson. Be receptive, mature and willing to understand problems of others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You complete transactions, reach understanding with business associate, family member. You get glimpse of future where nothing is concerned. See picture as a whole. Don't get bogged down with bits, pieces of red tape.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone who cares says so and hang the possible embarrassment. Rise above petty conventions. Express yourself. By friendship and affection you advance. Otherwise, you will fall back — and perhaps deserve it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Fresh concepts should be encouraged. Those who have your best interests at heart will encourage greater independence. Aquarius, Leo persons are likely to be involved. Develop ideas. Make contact with one who sends special message.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Emphasis is on goals, career, relationships with persons in authority. You are going to have fun, eat too much and meet people who claim you are the most.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are vibrant, alert, a natural reporter, one who is fond of travel and you can express yourself. Members of opposite sex are drawn to you. Gemini, Virgo persons play important roles in your October. There will be an outstanding month this year — so was January. You are going to overcome recent emotional setback. You're on road to recovery, financially and otherwise!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Open lines of communication. Gather additional information. Be aware of various possibilities. Deal with Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio individuals. Journey is on agenda. What has been missed will be located.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Investigate — take nothing for granted. Some people are willing to be free and easy — at your expense. Know it and get facts on table in open view. Money taxes lessens in surance policies are apt to be subjects for discussion.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle based on the letters of the alphabet. Each letter has a number from 1 to 26. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast for Saturday

Libra has a sentimental streak that is strong, wide and obvious, once the right buttons are pushed. The native can appear indifferent, objective, an advocate of impartiality — but when the chips are down, when the crunch occurs, Libra is Venus and caring and soft and willing to sacrifice for principle — and, in the main, for love. Do you understand your Libra?

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Power base is important. Means you need substance, not promise. You require a standing start, a getting-away place, a platform. You need not take a back seat. Key is to do what must be done and to get what is rightfully earned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lunar cycle is such that you get rid of obstacles, begin fresh with assets and start dancing to your own tune. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. Some people tell you that you were right all along. Be grateful but don't sink back into security blanket of past. Move forward!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You are enlightened. You get rid of some fears, doubts. Dynamic approach brings best results. Highlight independence of thought, action. One who is handicapped could teach you valuable lesson. Be receptive, mature and willing to understand problems of others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Someone who cares says so and hang the possible embarrassment. Rise above petty conventions. Express yourself. By friendship and affection you advance. Otherwise, you will fall back — and perhaps deserve it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis is on goals, career, relationships with persons in authority. You are going to have fun, eat too much and meet people who claim you are "the most."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Open lines of communication. Gather additional information. Be aware of travel and you can express yourself. Members of opposite sex are drawn to you. Gemini, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. October will be an outstanding month this year — so was January. You are going to overcome recent emotional setback. You're on road to recovery, financially and otherwise!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Investigate answers to your key numbers. Let them be free and easy — at your expense. Know it and get facts on table in open view. Money, taxes, leases, insurance policies are apt to be subjects for discussion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent is on permanency special kinds of relationships, including marriage. Work in conjunction with one who is no stranger to legalities. Means be positive that you are moving forward in way that creates harmony, no friction.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Stick to basics. Leave fantasies for better time. Emphasis now is on combining practicality and imagination. You can do so in profitable manner. Recent health problem can be understood and properly treated. Conservative course would seem to be best for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Emphasis on change of scene, application of creative abilities and special relationships with children, loved ones. Nothing is apt to be lukewarm — now it is all or nothing. Imprint your mark, style. You need not take back seat or accept watered-down versions. You'll see!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You complete transactions, reach understanding with business associate, family member. You get glimpse of future where security is concerned. See picture as a whole. Don't get bogged down with bits, pieces of red tape.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Fresh concepts should be encouraged. Those who have your best interests at heart will encourage greater independence. Aquarius, Leo persons are likely to be involved. Develop ideas. Make contact with one who sends special message.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are vibrant, alert, a natural reporter, one who is fond of travel and you can express yourself. Members of opposite sex are drawn to you. Gemini, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. October will be an outstanding month this year — so was January. You are going to overcome recent emotional setback.
